World Praises Moon Orbiters

The world acclaimed the first circumnavigation of the moon who completed their mission Friday with a pinpoint landing in the Pacific.

The congratulatory messages began pouring into the White House shortly after astronauts Frank Borman, James Lovell and William Anders splashed into the Pacific aboard Apollo 8.

Governor-General Michener cabled President Johnson a message saying Canadians followed the "fabulous flight" with keen admiration and took "special pride" in the fact that Lovell has a Canadian family background.

Lovell's father was born in Toronto. He also has an uncle in Toronto, an aunt in Windsor, Ont., and a first cousin in London, Ont.

A poll of news editors across Canada picked the six-day moon flight as the top story of 1968.

Ten Soviet cosmonauts and Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny praised the "courageous astronauts."

President Johnson kept Russian leaders informed on the flight in a series of messages on the "hot line" between the White House and the Kremlin.

Pope Paul, in a telegram to Johnson, thanked God for the success of the mission and congratulated the astronauts.

UN Secretary-General U Thant called the flight a stunning achievement and said the three astronauts ranked among the foremost explorers of all time.

In Britain, Queen Elizabeth, Prime Minister Wilson, Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the Jodrell Bank radio telescope, and the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, all sent congratulatory messages.

Lovell, Britain's best known space expert, said that the shot leaves little doubt that the United States will aim for moon landings in 1969.

Radio Moscow and Tass, the Soviet news agency, kept Soviet citizens up to date on the final minutes of the flight.

GREAT SHAPE
ABOARD YORKTOWN (AP)—The Apollo 8 astronauts continue physical debriefings aboard this carrier today before flying to the United States and a belated Christmas with their families.

"They're in great shape," reported Dr. Clarence A. Jernigan, a space agency doctor aboard the carrier.

Jernigan said Col. Frank Borman, Capt. James Lovell and Maj. William Anders seemed to be in better condition than many astronauts who returned from earth orbital missions.

"They look great and are looking better all the time, completely alert and very happy," Jernigan commented after the astronauts completed an extensive five-hour examination following their pinpoint splashdown in the Pacific Friday.

THE BENNETTS AT HOME

Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Mrs. Bennett welcomed some 300 guests who attended their annual open house Friday in Kelowna. Premier Bennett described the open house as a "tremendous success, particularly in the light of the extreme cold weather." During the 10 years the premier has held open house during the Christmas season, the weather has never been so cold. Last year, with the temperature at 38 degrees, 450 people attended. See story page three.—(Courier Photo)

U.S. Set To Spur Envoys At Paris Out Of Wrangle

PARIS (AP)—The return of U.S. negotiator Cyrus Vance heralded today an expected new United States effort to break out of the procedural jam holding up the peace conference on Vietnam.

But a spokesman for the South Vietnamese, the Americans' negotiating partner for the four-way parley, made plain that Saigon thinks Hanoi's envoys should make the next move.

"We have tried our best, we have put out several proposals," the Saigon delegation spokesman told reporters. "It's up to the other side now to do something."

The contrast between the South Vietnamese emphasis on standing firm and Vance's stress on hope for a breakthrough soon reflected what some diplomats have been saying privately: That the U.S. delegates are the only ones here really pushing for a fast start on the conference originally scheduled to open Nov. 6.

The South Vietnamese contend a display of impatience would play into the hands of Hanoi and the National Liberation Front, allowing them to parlay southern allied eagerness into concessions the Hanoi-NLF negotiators would not win otherwise.

WAIT FOR NIXON?
In addition, most of the non-U.S. delegates doubt that basic bargaining will begin before they can assess the negotiating posture of the new Nixon administration taking office Jan. 20.

Vance, arriving from a week of consultations with President Johnson and others in both the Johnson and Nixon administrations, told an airport news conference:

"We are going to do everything in our power to break through the roadblocks which are facing us now. I hope we can do this in the not too distant future."

The dismissal Friday of the 12 government news agency and television station employees who had accompanied the Saigon delegation to Paris was announced today in Saigon by a government spokesman.

Many saw it as a power play intended to undercut Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky, supervisor of the Saigon delegation.

Ky is in Saigon consulting with President Nguyen Van Thieu.

The employees had been authorized to go to Paris by Ky, but had not received clearance from Information Minister Ton That Thien.

Thien, according to the spokesman, considered the men under his jurisdiction and not Ky's. Thien had resigned effective Dec. 22, but did not turn over his duties to his successor, Nguyen Ngoc An, until today.

Court Of Inquiry Ordered To Study Loss Of 'Spy Ship'

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A high court of inquiry has been ordered by the U.S. Navy to study the loss of the intelligence ship Pueblo.

The court of five admirals was directed Friday by the Pacific Fleet commander, Admiral John J. Hyland, to "inquire into the circumstances relating to the seizure of the Pueblo and the subsequent detention of the vessel and the officers and crew."

Basic issues to be decided include whether the Pueblo's skipper, Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, had the "power to resist" when his ship was taken by the North Koreans.

A spokesman said the court also will consider whether statements allegedly made by the crew members during their 11-month confinement constituted violations of the military Code of Conduct—although the navy said such violations are "not a criminal offense" and cannot be prosecuted.

The court will not meet for several weeks—until intelligence debriefings of the crew are completed. It can only make recommendations to higher officials and has no power to take punitive or disciplinary action, the navy said.

ELEVEN WERE WOUNDED
At the same time, the navy disclosed that the two top officers and nine other men aboard the Pueblo at the time of its capture were wounded by North Korean gunfire.

One, fireman Duane D. Hodges of Creswell, Ore., was mortally wounded. The injuries of the others have healed, the navy said. Bucher, the executive officer, Lt. Edward Murphy, and the eight others will receive Purple Heart medals in a ceremony next week.

The navy also disclosed Bucher is suffering from physical and emotional exhaustion and has been moved to a private room in a building separate from the crew quarters.

Victoria's Daffodils Buried Under 18-Inch Snow Blanket

VANCOUVER (CP)—Residents of southern British Columbia still shaken by Friday's heavy snows and freezing temperatures, awoke today to another day of cold weather.

Daffodils in Victoria were buried in 18 inches of snow. Cars in Vancouver froze shut.

Residents of both cities, accustomed to a climate of little snow or freezing temperatures, were unprepared for the change. Motorists who did not warm up car engines experienced boiling radiators and service stations were lined up with stalling vehicles. Short supplies of anti-freeze, snow tires and chains were quickly depleted in many areas. Frozen doors and locks were common complaints.

Victoria's overnight low of six degrees was an all-time low for the B.C. capital.

The low reading of eight degrees at Vancouver International Airport at 8 a.m. today, however, was far off the Vancouver all-time December low of 1.9 degrees, recorded Dec. 16, 1964, and the all-time low of zero of Jan. 14, 1950.

Vancouver's Victoria complaints were piled by the 58 below reported from Watson Lake near the B.C.-Yukon border.

Today's morning synopsis said southern and coastal B.C. was becoming embedded in a thick layer of dry frigid air. With the cold temperatures came clear skies, offering the consolation of bright sunshine in some areas, something seen on only rare occasions in southern B.C. during rainy winter months.

No change in the bitterly cold weather is indicated as a large arctic high-pressure area dominates the weather map. The weather office said the deep-freeze will continue.

MT. KOBAY PROJECT Consortium Of Universities Wants To Take Over Scope

VICTORIA (CP)—The $22,000,000 Queen Elizabeth telescope project, cancelled during the federal government's austerity drive in August, may be built by seven universities in British Columbia and Alberta.

The consortium of universities has sent a formal request to J. J. Greene, energy, mines and resources minister, to put the Mount Kobay assets under their control so they can continue the project.

Dr. G. T. Odgers, of the University of Victoria, telescope design team leader, said Friday the request has gone from the universities of Victoria, British Columbia, Simon Fraser and Notre Dame in B.C. and from the three universities of Alberta in Edmonton, Calgary and Lethbridge.

They have asked for the site and the road to the 6,200 foot mountain, 22 miles south of Port Huron, and for the mirror and polishing machine. Dr. Odgers said, "When the project was cancelled, $4,500,000 already had been spent. Dr. K. O. Wright, director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Bear Mountain, Vancouver Island, has since blamed job-

Still Cautious About Landing

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (Reuters)—Space officials today were enthusiastic about the Apollo 8 journey but cautious in committing the United States to a date when men could land on the moon.

Dr. Thomas Paine, acting administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, would say only that the space flight program would "extend through many generations."

"This is the first time that man has gone out to the outer regions of space, free of the earth's gravity. But many are going to follow in the footsteps of the three astronauts."

The flight to land man on the moon, expected sometime in 1969, depends in part on the success of Apollo 9 in February to test the lunar module which will fer two men from an orbiting ship to the moon.

Apollo 10, a lunar orbital mission involving further space manoeuvres near the moon, scheduled for May or June. But many space officials privately believe that if Apollo 9 is an unqualified success, Apollo 11's mission to land men on the moon could come as early as May or June.

This would mean eliminating a separate Apollo 10 flight and fitting the Apollo 11 lunar module to the Apollo 10 spacecraft.

Apollo 11 now is being prepared for launching in July or August.

Maj.-Gen. Samuel Phillips, director of the man-on-the-moon project, admitted Apollo 11 could be launched without flying Apollo 10.

Czech Cabinet To Step Down For A New Federal Regime

PRAGUE (AP)—The government of Premier Odrlek Cernik unanimously agreed today to resign in order that a new federal regime can take effect Jan. 1, Prague radio reported.

The broadcast said Cernik presided at the final meeting of his government today and stated that "from Jan. 1 the new federal system will take effect."

"He recommended therefore that the present government should resign and hand its resignations to President Ludvik Svoboda," the broadcast added. "The ministers approved this proposal unanimously."

There was no word on when the resignations would be submitted to Svoboda, but this was expected shortly.

The new government, expected to be headed by Cernik as premier but with a smaller cabinet, is to be announced later, probably by Svoboda in a New Year's address.

A high ranking Soviet delegation arrived Friday and is holding closed door talks with Czechoslovak leaders.

The Soviet delegation, headed by Konstantin F. Katushev, did not announce the purpose of its visit. But diplomatic sources said it probably came to check on Czechoslovakia's plans to change to a federal system of government.

Katushev, the Soviet party secretary in charge of relations with ruling Communist parties, plays a key role in Soviet efforts to assure the "normalization" of Czechoslovakia after the August invasion.

The Soviet Union was said to have opposed earlier Czechoslovak plans to decentralize government authority under the new federal system.

Originally, the idea was to set up a small federal government, giving more regional autonomy to the two major sections of the country—Slovakia and the Czech lands of Bohemia and Moravia.

Plane Crashes In Flames Leaving Death Toll Of 30

CHICAGO (AP)—A North Central Airlines twin-engine prop-jet airliner attempting to land at mist-covered O'Hare International Airport Friday night slammed into a hangar and burst into flames.

North Central officials reported 30 of the 45 persons listed aboard the Convair 580 were killed. Cook County (Chicago) officials said 27 bodies were counted in the wreckage which burned for more than an hour.

Eight boys, members of a drum and bugle team which had just ended a practice session in the empty hangar, were among the 27 persons admitted to hospitals.

The crackup occurred when the plane apparently missed a runway in the fog and drizzle which shrouded O'Hare, the world's busiest airport.

The plane, Flight 458 which originated in Minneapolis, may have had an extra passenger. A North Central spokesman said that an off-duty pilot may have been riding in a jump seat behind the pilot. This would make a total of 46 aboard the plane.

Spokesmen for two hospitals near O'Hare said many of the injured persons suffered smoke inhalation.

The pilot, Capt. Marvin A. Payne of Lakeland, Minn., the first officer, Gerald R. Levalley of Bloomington, Minn., and the flight officer, Richard Kargel of Burnsville, Minn., were killed.

STEWARDSSES INJURED
The stewardesses, Jean A. Krbek of Minneapolis, was injured.

The fatalities were the first in North Central's 20-year history. The airline operates in 11 Midwestern states and had flown 3,100,000 passengers in 1967 without a fatality.

Forty members of the Vanguard Drum and Bugle Corps of suburban Des Plaines had been practicing in the hangar, which is shared by Braniff and Northwest Airlines, minutes before the airliner crashed through the front doors and virtually disintegrated and exploded in flames.

Officials said they could not determine why the plane hit the hangar which is about a half-mile east of the runway. Federal Aviation Administration controllers said weather conditions were above the minimum for a landing on the intended runway. Visibility was about one mile.

While rates actually charged by lenders under NHA have recently tended to be below the ceiling, rates charged in November pushed against the limit CMHC said Friday the average charged in November was 8.74 per cent, compared with the ceiling of 8.75 and October's average rate of 8.16.

The high rates attracted more money into house construction without apparently deterring buyers seriously. Housebuilding activity was at a record in November, with 19,057 new dwellings started, up more than 60 per cent from the previous November.

Almost A Forgotten Levy As Estate Tax Hits News

OTTAWA (CP) — On Jan. 1 many Canadians will start paying up to $120 a year to the federal government in new taxes, but this latest levy seems to be becoming the almost forgotten element of the Oct. 22 budget.

The key-judging at least by public comment—is in proposals to change the federal estate tax. One writer has called the proposals an acceptance of communist dogma that would destroy the backbone of Canadian society.

A tax authority, writing in a daily newspaper, termed them a bid to out-Carter Carter, referring to what had earlier been described as the socialist tendencies in the 1967 report of the Carter royal commission on tax reform.

"Catastrophic" and "outrageous" are a few of the adjectives applied to the suggested changes.

Opposition Leader Stanfield told Parliament Nov. 29 that the proposals are another indication of something approaching "calculated indifference or, indeed, injustice" on the part of the Liberal government.

If passed into law, the proposals would be of real concern to hundreds of thousands of Canadians, he said.

Some private tax officials have suggested that millions of wills would be affected.

HAS THREE ASPECTS

Basically, there are three aspects to the proposals.

One would end any taxing of estates and gifts between spouses—for example, when a husband dies and leaves everything to his wife.

If he leaves anything to his children or others, however, or when his widow dies and passes the estate on, taxes would be slapped on and at generally higher rates than under existing rules.

Gift taxes also would be increased and, by a special cumulative feature, would affect many estate tax rates.

The proposal to free spouse-to-spouse estates and gifts—a reform long sought by tax lawyers and accountants, among many others—has won almost unanimous approval.

The cruncher, as J. G. Hungerford, chairman of National Trust Co. Ltd. put it, would come when the estate is passed on to the next generation.

In essence, the attacks on these proposals boil down to a charge that they will make it more difficult to retain an estate—usually described as a farm or a small business—within a family.

Said Mr. Stanfield, more emphatically: "The new rates will make it virtually impossible for a family to maintain control of a substantial family business. This of course is bound to lead to more U.S. takeovers."

SPECTRE RAISED

The spectre of the United States ogre standing ready to gobble up small but thriving Canadian businesses and farms as they are pushed to the wall by the need to pay estate taxes has been raised repeatedly.

The attacks are not surprising, says one government official, since no one likes taxes. But what, if any, validity have they?

Edgar J. Benson, the finance minister who introduced the proposals in his maiden budget speech, has a succinct and predictable reply: "None."

He says critics overlook the fact that the proposals should benefit greatly widows of working men who die leaving a car, a few thousand dollars in savings, a house and a paid-up pension plan.

Under existing rules, the pension plan is included in the widow's estate and in thousands of cases it increased the value of the estate to taxable proportions.

Not Enough To Force Sales

Anyway, Mr. Benson says, the estate tax levels—existing and proposed—simply are not onerous enough to force sales.

Another government defence is that, in classical economics, an estate tax is regarded as one of the fairest levies possible, since the recipient is getting something he did not work for.

Whether you agree the new rates are not unduly onerous depends on how you feel about giving money to the government.

First are proposed changes in the general exemptions. The free passing on of an estate to a widow would replace the existing $60,000 exemption, also granted a surviving but infirm widower with a dependent child.

EXEMPTION REDUCED

A general estate exemption, now $40,000, would be reduced to $20,000.

All children would receive at least a $10,000 exemption under the proposed changes. The exemption would be increased by infirmity or by being under 26.

The existing exemption is $10,000 for children under 21 but it is not granted to children of a healthy widower who inherits an estate.

The maximum tax rate under the proposed schedule would be reduced to 50 per cent from 55 per cent, but it would be applied to estates worth $300,000 or more. The present floor for the maximum rate is $155,000.

What, then, would happen to estates passed on to two children, both older than 25? Since estates passed to spouses would be tax-free comparison in this field between the existing and proposed systems is of little use.

Ronald Robertson, former director of the Canadian Tax Foundation and now a Toronto tax lawyer, made these calculations in the Canadian Tax Journal.

Under the existing tax, the general exemption of $40,000 granted the estate; under the proposed tax, the general exemption of $20,000 would apply, plus $10,000 for each child.

"When I was revenue minister before this job, this was the single area where by far the greatest hardship was forced on people who had no resources to help themselves. I vowed I was going to stop it."

In his budget speech, Mr. Benson said the government does not expect any changes in revenues in the next year because of the proposals. Estate tax collections in 1967-68 totalled $102,000,000, up from $87,100,000 five years earlier.

FORECASTS DIFFICULT

Mr. Benson says attempts to forecast longer-term changes in revenues from the proposals are hazardous and difficult, but he adds that a consensus of department thinking is that there would be little change attributable directly to new tax rules.

One government defence against the forced-sale charges is that there is little evidence that the sudden need to meet an estate tax assessment has ever been the predominant factor in making someone sell a business he has inherited.

A recent Ontario tax study suggested estate taxes do influence some sales, but Ottawa officials say it is not clear what other factors were involved or to what degree.

The major reason for selling a business, they say, is that the children just aren't interested in carrying it on. They'd rather get some money from it and step out on their own.

Estate Size	Existing Tax	Proposed Tax
$80,000	$2,600	$3,000
100,000	10,200	10,800
300,000	60,800	80,200
1,000,000	313,900	429,200
5,000,000	2,394,100	2,429,200
10,000,000	5,114,900	4,929,200

The cumulative feature of proposed changes in gift taxes could affect estate taxes.

For example, a $100,000 taxable estate would pay $15,600 under the proposed rates. If, however, the deceased person had made taxable gifts of $30,000 during his last year of life, the tax paid would be $19,386.

This happens because the $30,000 is added to the $100,000 to determine the level of taxation and increases it to about 17 per cent from 15. Tax, of course, is not assessed against the estate for the $30,000 in gifts.

UNDER ATTACK

Mr. Benson and his proposals have come under sharp attack for reasons other than new rates, chiefly the delay between announcing the proposals in the budget and introducing enabling legislation so detailed assessments of the changes could be made.

For example, many wills contain a clause saying a spouse has to survive for 30 days to inherit. This is to prevent legal complications of who dies first in such circumstances as a car or airplane crash.

Montrealers Have To Walk As Bus Strike Paralyzes Area

MONTREAL (CP) — Paralysis of bus service continued today in 10 communities on the south shore of the St. Lawrence River opposite Montreal Island following union rejection Friday night of new proposals put forth by the strike-bound Chambly Transport Co. and the mayor of south-shore St. Lambert.

Represented by the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers, about 125 drivers of the bus company voted at a provincial government-organized conciliation meeting to reject a formula that would have brought partial resumption of Chambly Transport service.

To a suggestion that service be resumed immediately in St. Lambert, one of the 10 south-shore communities affected by the walkout, now 3½ months old, the union answered that all drivers must return to work at the same time.

The Chambly Transport workers walked off their jobs Sept. 13—for the second time in less than 11 months—after the company said it could not find the funds to cover employee demands for higher pay.

Earlier this month the legislative assembly in Quebec City passed an amendment to the Cities and Towns Act permitting municipalities to subsidize transportation companies.

SUBSIDY GRANTED

Mayor James K. Stewart of St. Lambert last week signed an agreement with Charles E. Senecal, president of Chambly Transport, to subsidize wage increases for the drivers through weekly subventions of between $350 and $500.

The mayor called on the other affected municipalities to sign similar agreements with Mr. Senecal.

But the proposal was rejected by the drivers Friday night. They said they will maintain group solidarity on any and all return-to-work moves.

The union also presented revised wage demands on behalf of the drivers, who originally sought an hourly increase of $1.25 to $3.50 in a one-year contract.

Now they ask $2.85 an hour in the first six months of the contract and $3.10 an hour for the next six months.

SAIGON (AP) — Twelve staff members of the South Vietnamese government news agency and television station who went to Paris with Saigon's peace talks delegation have been dismissed, a government spokesman said today.

The 10 news agency employees and two television men had gone to Paris Dec. 7 with Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky, supervisor of the delegation. They had been authorized to go by Ky, but had not received clearance from Information Minister Ton That Thien, the spokesman said. He said Thien signed a decree Friday firing the 12.

OTTAWA-PROVINCIAL WAY

This Road May Be Less Clear

OTTAWA (CP) — It was Prime Minister Trudeau himself who called the process of constitutional reform a "journey whose destination is uncertain."

Early in the new year Mr. Trudeau will be chief guide as he and the provincial premiers embark on a new stage of the journey.

And after a year of debate and ferment started by last February's conference, the road ahead may be less clear than it was before.

The February meeting broke up in a wave of goodwill and congratulations as Lester B. Pearson, in one of his last accomplishments as prime minister, guided the way to a stated agreement on language and cultural rights.

French-speaking Canadians outside Quebec should have the same rights, English-speaking Canadians in Quebec, the conference declared.

WEST GRUMBLED

There was some grumbling from the West at even this limited declaration. The other hand, Quebec's Daniel Johnson, who was to die in office later in the year, warned that the country's problems couldn't be eliminated by an "aspirin" or a "thin varnish of bilingualism."

But the meeting also broke new ground in other areas.

It was the first held in the open, with television cameras and voters looking on, and most agreed that the effect was salutary.

It set up a complex apparatus for continued discussion of the constitution by federal and provincial officials.

The prime minister and premiers a continuing conference on the constitution.

And the meeting may have marked the beginning of a new federal toughness as Mr. Trudeau, then justice minister, dug in Ottawa's heels against the pressure of Quebec demands for wider powers.

For a year now the issues brought into focus by the first conference have been under debate, sometimes in closed conference rooms and sometimes in the streets.

RESULTS ON VIEW

When the new conference convenes in early February the results of shifting views and alignments will be on view.

What is at stake, again in Mr. Trudeau's words, is "what kind of country we want to live in."

It includes not only the continuing struggle between the provinces and Ottawa for powers and tax dollars but also fundamental civil rights and the shape of national institutions such as the Senate and the Supreme Court of Canada.

On civil rights, including language rights, the federal government wants protections embedded in a national constitution while several provinces prefer to leave them under the scope of individual legislatures.

Taking on increasing importance as the year progressed was the question of how far the federal government can go in setting priorities for provincial programs.

Several provinces protested that the federal insistence on going ahead with the shared-forced them toward a program they couldn't afford.

SHARE THE WEALTH

And in Eastern Canada premiers have laid heavy stress on regional disparity: the problem of getting richer parts of the country to share their wealth with poorer areas.

But it was the overriding question of Quebec's place in the country that overshadowed the whole constitutional debate during 1968.

The June federal election posed the alternatives of "one nation of two founding peoples" put forward by the Liberal government, and the concept of "one Canada" in which both main language groups would be at home throughout the country.

In the background were demands from Quebecers ranging from some kind of "special status" to outright independence.

The question became more than academic as Quebec nationalists touched off bloody election-day riots in Montreal and as English-speaking Canadians paraded in St. Leonard for maintenance of English-language schooling.

NEW BALL GAME

The Quebec demands will be dominant again this February, although in some ways it will be a new ball game.

Alberta's E. C. Manning will not be back to play his role as a leading conservative traditionalist. His successor, Harry Strom, is an unknown quantity in the capital.

It was Mr. Manning who last year warned of a "constitutional Munich" if Quebec achieved its demands on language and educational rights and then asked for more.

But Saskatchewan's Ross Thatcher, who said Canada's breakup would be automatic if Quebec got the powers it sought, will be back along with British Columbia's unpredictable W. A. C. Bennett.

Mr. John G. Diefenderfer, Jean-Jacques Bertrand, is rated a moderate in the capital but his attendance is uncertain. It was Mr. Bertrand's illness that led to postponement of the conference.

ment of the second conference from the scheduled date in mid-December.

PRIORITY FOR RIGHTS

Whoever represents Quebec, the tone of its case is not expected to differ radically from that of Mr. Johnson.

A working paper released by the Quebec government in October spoke again of vastly increased powers for the province in social security and regional development, together with the right to sign international agreements in areas within provincial jurisdiction.

Once again a top priority for Mr. Trudeau will be the charter of human rights.

In early December the prime minister said his government wanted agreement on the charter before plunging into debate on division of powers.

Mr. Bertrand, a few days later said the proposed charter would amount to an invasion of provincial jurisdiction and that a discussion of power-sharing should have priority.

Ontario's John Roberts meanwhile was concentrating heavily on taxing powers, relating them to the medical care problem.

He complained of "branch plant" politics in which the federal government made decisions on how the provinces should spend their money.

SHIFTED GROUND

The influential Ontario premier also seemed to be shifting ground on the basic question of the primacy of the federal government.

Last February he had said that in the process of constitutional change, "we do not intend to bring into question the primacy of the federal government."

But in December he said that if co-operation and co-ordination are to work, there cannot be an assumption of superior power which unsettles the priorities and decisions of other governments.

Mr. Trudeau a meanwhile was saying it would be illogical

BUSINESS WAS BETTER LAST WEEK

Quite content with the situation at present is young 12-year-old David Grant of 1745 Ethel St. What more could a youngster his age ask than to be surrounded by all the toys modern man has to offer? There is only one thing that could put an end to his dream—namely a one belongs to him.

Actually, David, a friend of the downtown store owners, has been helping around the store during the Christmas rush. With the rush completed young David can now sit back and relax—and dream. —(Courier Photo)

Crowd Slightly Smaller But Premier Impressed

The crowd was smaller than last year but Premier W. A. C. Bennett still described his annual open house Friday as a "great success."

"Considering the cold weather, the number of people who turned out was remarkable," Premier Bennett said.

More than 300 people attended the open house, held by the premier at his home for the past 10 years during every Christmas season.

"During the 10 years of our open house, the weather has never been as cold," Premier Bennett said. "Mrs. Bennett and I were amazed by the number who turned out."

"They came from Winfield, Summerland, Rutland, Okanagan an Mission and Kelowna. To travel such a distance on a cold night says a great deal for the holiday spirit of those who attended."

Last year, with the temperature at a warm 38 degrees, more than 450 people attended. The premier said he was also impressed by the broad-based group that attended Friday.

"There were people of all ages and in all levels of income," he said. "There were college students, businessmen, orchardists and people from every walk of life."

"This type of representation more than makes up for the smaller crowd."

The premier also announced he would hold a garden party at his home in July. He said the party would be open to all who wished to attend.

"We have been here 38 years," he said. "During those years we have been showered with kindness by the people of Kelowna and the Okanagan."

"Inviting these people into my home, either during the Christmas season or in July, is but a small token of the appreciation I hold for them."

Host Of Recreation Courses Available During New Year

Popular recreation courses and a course especially designed for newlyweds will be offered in the new year.

The recreation courses start Jan. 6 and will feature art, portrait, outdoor art, barbecue cooking, better boating, birds of the Okanagan, intermediate bridge, resteraft, ceramics, fishing in the Okanagan, fly-casting, fly-tying, how to run a discussion group, trees, shrubs and flowers of the Okanagan and woodwork for women.

The final course goes June 18. The courses are being offered at Kelowna Secondary School.

The marriage and new year's course features six sessions of lecture discussions co-sponsored by the Okanagan Mental Health Association. They will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays in the Kelowna Secondary School, and are expected to be of particular interest to those contemplating marriage or newly married.

Marriage in the 20th Century will be taught Jan. 28, the physical and emotional aspects of marriage Feb. 4 and 11, money in marriage Feb. 18, three elegy men discuss marriage and sexuality Feb. 25 and women are not equal March 4.

The recreation courses are sponsored by the Parks and Recreation Commission.

SEEN and HEARD

Cold in the Okanagan? Not if you ask a few Prairie types who have visited on the other side of the mountains during the past few days. Temperatures in Calgary and Edmonton have ranged down to 30 below zero and former Prairie residents returning to Kelowna insist they can notice the 20 to 30 degrees temperature improvement here. What we could really use is a Calgary-type chinook.

port the new 'thing' is safe and quite speedy as it whirled and skims along the slopes.

Kelowna, normally busy Friday night, was much quieter than usual during the evening. With the cold weather only a few vehicles were seen downtown. One man overheard in a local restaurant wondered where all the people were. Apparently most believe the safest and warmest place is at home.

COLD weather is forecast for Kelowna Sunday.

Sunny with a few cloudy intervals and isolated snowflakes today. Mainly sunny Sunday. Continuing extremely cold. Winds northerly 25 and gusty in main valleys otherwise light.

The high and low forecast for Kelowna Sunday are zero and 10 below. The high and low recorded in Kelowna Friday were five and 11 below, compared with 25 and 33 on the same date one year ago.

Poor visibility and icy road conditions have been a hazard to Kelowna drivers during the past week but only one accident occurred in the city Friday.

Stan Kostluk and Wesley Koehn, both of Kelowna, were involved in a two-car collision at Shops Capri. The accident occurred at 6:45 p.m. and resulted in a total of $1,200 damage.

RCMP said the accident was caused, at least in part, by the poor driving conditions. They urged motorists to use extreme caution when driving in or near the city.

Wine Company To Appeal Decision

MONTREAL (CP) — Chateau-Gal Wines Ltd., maintaining that it is entitled to use the word "champagne" on the labels of its sparkling wines, filed an appeal today against a $75,000 damage judgment.

Chateau-Gal, whose head office is in Niagara Falls, Ont., was ordered Monday to pay the $75,000 to 15 French shippers of champagne and to stop using the word in labelling its products.

Mr. Justice Claude Prevost of Quebec Superior Court ruled that Chateau-Gal had violated a 1933 treaty between Canada and France stipulating that the word champagne must be used only as a "term of origin," to denote wine made from specific grapes grown in clearly defined areas of France.

Inland Crews Hard At Work

While other people in Kelowna are experiencing trouble with dead batteries, slippery road conditions, Inland Natural Gas is having trouble with its pipeline.

Inland Natural Gas has experienced a pressure drop in the pipeline servicing the Okanagan Mission area. In case of just such an occurrence, it has installed an auxiliary valve which has been turned on. Full crews are working from around the Kelowna area and also an extra crew from Vernon, trying to restore service as quickly as possible.

D. G. Pratt, manager of Inland Gas said the trouble should be rectified shortly.

More Coming Into Province Than Travelling To Prairies

More people continue to come into B.C. than leave, at least via the Rogers Pass.

Figures for November released by the park superintendent's office in Mount Revelstoke and Glacier National Parks show westbound traffic through the Pass in Glacier National Park was slightly higher than traffic heading east.

The 11,893 westbound vehicles travelling through the east gate carried 25,378 passengers, compared with 11,814 vehicles eastbound, with 26,017 passengers going through the west gate.

Since April 1, 280,955 westbound vehicles have passed through the east gate carrying 83,224 passengers, with 297,032 eastbound vehicles carrying 873,888 passengers.

The Trans-Canada highway is in good winter condition. Motorists from the Central Okanagan are required to equip their vehicles with adequate winter tread tires or carry adequate tire chains when travelling through the Rogers Pass. Vehicles pulling trailers or semi-trailers must carry properly fitted tire chains. Drivers may be refused admittance at the national park entrance for failure to observe this regulation.

Drivers should carry shovels and a tow rope and are warned to watch for unexpected slippery conditions in snow sheds along areas of shaded road surface. Motorists are also cautioned to watch for falling rock.

No Serious Concern Yet For Okanagan Fruit Trees

By RON ALLERTON
Courier City Editor

When the weatherman says the overnight low will probably also be the high temperature for the day, you know winter has really arrived.

And, if the low temperatures are not evidence enough, you can certainly get proof from vapor rising off Okanagan Lake, making it look like a giant sauna bath for polar bears.

The high temperature Friday was five degrees above zero and the overnight low 11 below. The situation isn't expected to improve Sunday, with a low and high of 10 below and zero forecast.

For the most part the cold weather has caused only minor inconveniences: cars which won't start, frozen car locks and plumbing, tough driving conditions, and frozen locks on rural mail boxes.

Many buildings and homes have their heating plants operating at capacity, people are wearing extra clothing even indoors and heating bills are certain to be higher for December. Even when dressed properly people are discovering after they have been outside only a few minutes just how cold 10 below zero is.

Half the city's taxis were not running early today and operators of an 11-truck fleet of milk delivery vehicles were able to start only three of them.

The big worry, of course, is the Okanagan's fruit trees. Fruit industry officials were not at work Friday or today, but the general opinion was the trees are almost dormant and won't be affected greatly by the cold.

The cold snap comes later in December than the crippling blow which hit the fruit industry in the winter of 1964-65. Then the below-zero temperatures hit Dec. 15, 16 and 17, about 10 days earlier than this year. The result was a disaster.

Some growers consider their trees dormant by the end of December, while others say the date is mid-January.

In any case, the temperature drop this time is not as sudden as in 1964 and there is plenty of snow protection for roots. In 1964 the temperature plunged quickly to more than 10 below from a previous day's high in the 20 degree range.

Low temperatures so far this month are not considered critical by most fruit industry people, but with the current low range, wind could become a dangerous factor. Temperatures are lower, and some grape growers, with tender varieties, are hoping low temperatures and wind don't become worse.

The coldest temperature in recent years was 13 below zero Dec. 16, 1964. Even Christmas Day that year was below zero.

Long time Valley residents say the coldest day ever was 22 below zero in 1957. Government records give the record low at 20 below without mentioning the year and -19 in 1942.

The average mean temperature in Kelowna during December is an even freezing, 32 degrees above zero.

Current records from volunteer Kelowna weather observers go back only to 1962.

December 1964 was easily the coldest of any winter months since 1962. Other December lows were: nine above on Dec. 29, 1965; 21 above on Dec. 30, 1966 and eight above on Dec. 20, 1967.

The lowest November reading since 1962 was 13 above on Nov. 26, 1967. The lowest in January was seven degrees below zero on Jan. 20, 1962; the lowest in February six above on Feb. 26, 1962 and the worst in March 10 above on March 26, 1965, which also contributed to the heavy fruit tree loss that season.

Another factor with low temperatures is wind, which makes the actual temperature experienced much more severe than the actual mercury reading. For example, with a reading of zero and a 15 mph wind the temperature is actually -15 if you are exposed to the wind. At zero with a 25 mph wind the reading is 37. This is called the wind chill factor and it has been strongly evident since Thursday.

The snowfall in the past week, between 12 and -15 inches in most places, probably isn't a December record. In December ber last year there were 111 inches and in December 1964, 13.8.

In four of the past five Januarys there has been more than 10 inches, including 18.10 in 1965.

The worst March in the past six years for snowfall was 1962 when there was 2.75 inches. The worst February was 1965, 3.5 inches and the worst November last year, 6.9 inches.

Two men were appointed this week to the boards of Fruit Growers Mutual Insurance Company and BCFGA Mutual Hail Insurance Company.

They are Arthur Garrish of Oliver and James Kidston of Vernon.

Mr. Garrish is a past president of the BCFGA, having served in that position for 15 years. He is a prominent Oliver orchardist.

The other appointee, Mr. Kidston, operates an orchard in the Coldstream district, near Vernon. He served as reeve of the municipality of Coldstream from 1950 to 1959.

Also announced was the election of Douglas Fraser of Osoyoos as vice-president of BCFGA Mutual Hail Insurance Company. He fills the vacancy created by the recent death of John Luthy of Oliver.

Roads To Ski Areas Good If You Can Stand The Cold

Highway 97 in the Kelowna area was reported mostly bare, with some slippery conditions, in the department of highways' road report of 7:30 a.m. today.

There were some drifting conditions; plowing was in progress. These conditions existed all the way to Kamloops and Sicamous.

The Lumby to the Monashee Pass road was mostly bare at lower levels while on higher levels there was a "compact snow" road, with some drifting conditions.

One inch of new snow was reported in the Rogers Pass, with a "compact snow road" and some drifting conditions. The temperature was recorded at 38 degrees below zero. Winter tires were advised.

Similar conditions were reported in the Hope-Princeton area with two inches of new snow. Plowing was in progress and good winter conditions prevail. Almost identical conditions were reported in the Fraser Canyon, also with sub-zero temperatures recorded. Once again, winter tires were advised.

Writer Hunted For Christ Found Evidence Clear

Robert Ingersoll, the renowned atheist of a generation ago, was riding on a train with his friend and associate, Lew Wallace. As they approached the sprawling city of St. Louis, Missouri, they were discussing Ingersoll's current lecture tour, during which he openly attacked man's belief in God.

"Wallace, look at all those church steeples in St. Louis. Such a waste of good money. You and I both know that Christ did not really exist. Someone should tell the masses how foolish it is to worship a myth."

"It is a shame," agreed Wallace. "Lew, why don't you write a book and prove to the world once and for all that Jesus Christ was nothing but a mythical figure, much less the Son of God?" Ingersoll suggested.

"All right," Wallace replied, "I believe I will."

Lew Wallace spent much time and money investigating every shred of evidence that he could find. He read numerous books. He examined many ancient manuscripts. He visited the Holy Land. He read the Bible.

Something strange happened to Lew Wallace. The more he studied the more evidence he discovered to support Christ's existence. He searched more intently and more reverently. The evidence became irrefutable. He concluded that Jesus Christ was one of the best documented figures of history. Furthermore, Wallace believed, He must also have been the Son of God.

Lew Wallace accepted Christ as his personal Saviour. He did write a book about Jesus, but its message was altogether different from his preconceived notions. Anyone who has read Ben Hur can appreciate Wallace's thorough research and deep, reverent spirit in search of historical Jesus.

Lew Wallace was not the first, nor will he be the last, of those who have attempted to disprove Jesus Christ. He was neither the first or the last to encounter the living Christ through his honest and exhaustive search. He found God's promise to be true: "Ye shall seek me, and find me, when ye shall search for me with all your heart." (Jer. 29:13.)

The facts of Jesus' life are among the best substantiated details of history. Yet he lived in poverty and obscurity, possessing neither worldly acclaim nor power. He never wrote a book, but all the libraries of our country could not hold the books that have been written about Him.

The names of statesmen, scientists, philosophers, theologians, and teachers once famous for their contributions to civilization have come and gone. But the name of this Man abounds more and more. Herod could not destroy Him; the grave could not hold Him; time cannot erase His name from the pages of history.

Jesus Christ is the supreme miracle. There would be no honest infidel in the world if the Messianic prophecies were studied carefully. Hundreds of years before His birth, Jesus' coming was predicted. The prophets correctly foretold His birthplace (Mic. 5:2), His mother (Isa. 7:14), His tribe (Gen. 49:10), His family (Isa. 11:1), and the time of His birth (Dan. 9:25). Those who will diligently study God's Word will be able to say, "We have found him, of whom Moses in the law, and the prophets did write" (John 1:45).

The blessed message of Christmas is that God is with us (cf. Matt. 1:23). In the Incarnation, God became identified with man, and Christmas is not complete until Christ is born in us (cf. Gal. 4:19). A belief in the historical Jesus is not enough. He is more than a figure in the annals of civilization. He is the Lord of Life, and as our Saviour, He must become the vital centre of our lives.

Wise men still seek the Saviour and, like Lew Wallace, they still find Him when their search is directed beyond self to God and His Word.—Herald L. Adam, Pastor, Evangelical Church, Kelowna.

Impressive Experience

(Victoria Times)

While most members of the cabinet named by President-elect Nixon are relatively unfamiliar to the American public, they will bring a fairly impressive total of experience in administration to their new jobs. As bankers, businessmen, lawyers, academics, state governors, they have achieved high positions in private and public life. If it is to be argued that they are untrained for the demands of the very critical posts they will shortly fill — critical both for their country and for the world community — it may equally be asked what experience in any other field can really fit a man for such heavy responsibilities.

From now until they assume office there will be a good deal of speculation and assessment regarding the new advisers to the president. Their personal strengths and weaknesses, their philosophical as well as political attitudes to the problems awaiting them, their past records in facing decisions —all these will be dissected and analyzed. But regardless of the conclusions reached, they can be little more than conjecture; only exposure to the practicalities of office will provide the real test.

The behavior of men under such circumstances of great power and equally great problems is difficult to predict. The United States presidency itself has shown on occasion that an unpromising incumbent may rise to unexpected heights of achievement, while a very likely prospect may falter and fail under the load.

Under conditions of maximum stress and inescapable publicity a man's talents and training may become secondary considerations, while his personal character—his courage, his honesty, his aggressiveness, his adaptability, his humanity—may emerge as the essential strength, or defect, which determines his fate. The new cabinet, like the president himself, must remain known only as the men they are until their high office creates the men they will be.

LOOKING BACK WITH OLD STAGER

Okanagan Pioneer Jack Of All Trades

By ART GRAY

R. S. Hanna taught school at Okanagan until 1885. He was a man who could turn his hand to most any line of work. He proved this by becoming, in later years, a highly successful dentist in the City of Vancouver. From Okanagan Mission he went to Priest's Valley. (Vernon it became known as later), where he succeeded Miss Sophie Johnson as teacher of the school there, founded in 1883. Miss Johnson having resigned to become the wife of school trustee Price Ellison.

Succeeding Hanna at the Okanagan school was Thomas LeDuc, who taught school at Round Prairie. Back in 1881, Trustee Smithson had been taken ill with a permanent malady, and was replaced on the board by Alphonse LeFevre, who had come here from Fort Hope in 1878 with his bride, the former Susan Walker, daughter of a mill owner at Fort Hope. They first acquired the homestead of old John E. Moore, pioneer prospector of Mission Valley, located south of Five Bridges. Later LeFevre bought the Boucherie ranch on Mill Creek, just north of Brent's Mill.

Mrs. LeFevre had attended school at Fort Hope where one of her teachers was Mrs. Allison, who later, for a time, resided at Westbank, or Sunnyside, they called their ranch. The LeFevres had a large family, 10 in all, and two of the youngest were still going to school in 1909, at the Black Mountain school (now a dress shop), they were a daughter Leontine and a son Johnny. They shared one of those old fashioned double desks with me that year.

SURVIVING PUPIL
The daughter of old J. B. Moore, who later became Mrs. Johnny Haynes, was probably the oldest surviving former pupil of the Okanagan school, until her death in August last at the age of 91.

One of the early teachers was Mrs. W. D. Walker, who resides at Okanagan Mission. Mrs. Walker, then Miss Dorothea Thomson, taught in the old log cabin school at the turn of the century. Miss Thomson had come to the valley with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gifford Thomson, from the Shetland Islands, Scotland, in May 1882.

Previous to teaching at the Okanagan school Miss Thomson had been the first teacher of what is now called the Ellison school. This school district was formed in 1894, and was at first called the Okanagan Mission School District, and was the fourth school district in the Okanagan, the second being Priest's Valley (Vernon) in 1883, and the third, Kelowna, in 1892. D. W. Sutherland was Kelowna's first teacher, and classes were held in a room above Lequime's store.

JUST BETTER OFF
Pupils in the first classes in the Ellison school were hardly any better off, for prior to construction of the school they met in an upstairs room in the house of Joseph Christien—the same Joe Christien who was secretary of the Okanagan School, now become a trustee of the new district. The old house still stands, vacant and forlorn, beside Kelowna's busy modern airport.

Miss Thomson taught in the new Ellison one-room school when completed, from 1885 to 1888. She then visited the Old Country for a time, and upon her return she taught school at Okanagan School and again at Ellison in 1904-5. In the latter year she married W. D. Walker, another of Okanagan Mission's well known pioneers.

The Ellison history, written in 1958, tells us that, "during her stay in the district, Miss Thompson, was an accomplished musician, trained the pupils to sing and, no doubt, set the high standard for Christmas concerts for which the district was later famous."

Today, Mrs. Walker is unquestionably the oldest surviving teacher of the long list of those who have taught in the Valley's first historic school. The Okanagan school was still the old original log schoolhouse at that time. In 1886, according to Ron Weeks, whose father was an early trustee, the log school was replaced by a one room frame school. The logs from the old school were bought by Andy Patterson to build a barn, an inglorious ending for the historic structure.

In 1931 the school was doubled in size by the addition of a second classroom on the front. Now a two division school, another teacher was added, and the name was changed from the Okanagan to the Benvoulin school, the latter name having been given to the more limited area now being served, back in 1892 by George Grant Mackay, who had tried to establish a rival townsite to Kelowna there.

CEREMONY

On May 24, 1966, an interesting ceremony took place at the school grounds. A Douglas fir seedling, donated by the B.C. Forest Service, was planted on the school grounds with due ceremony, in the presence of the teachers and pupils, members of the school board and some 14 former teachers and pupils. Anthony Casorso, the oldest pupil attending, planted the tree, and in addition Rev. E. S. Fleming, who attended as a pupil in 1908, planted a chestnut tree, brought from his residence, the former Brent ranch.

A tea, served by the PTA followed, at which Mrs. W. D. Walker, the former teacher, cut the decorated cake, baked for the occasion. J. H. Hayes, of the Kelowna Centennial committee was speaker. Other former pupils attending were Mrs. Leon Gillard, Mrs. Bennett Greening, Mrs. W. D. Quigley, Mrs. Wm. Spear, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Tutt, Joseph Berard, Fred Day Sr., Stan Burch and Archie Hardy. A wooden plaque was placed on front of the school inscribed: "Benvoulin School. On this site the first public school was erected in 1874." The Courier story failed to grasp the significance of the school's history, simply referring to it as "the oldest school in School District 23."

The 100th anniversary is coming up soon, and it is to be hoped that a permanent memorial, properly inscribed, will be erected either in 1974, the centennial of the formation of the school district, or 1975, the year the school was opened.

I have endeavored, without success, to compile a complete list of the teachers who have taught at the school, but there are still many blank spots. Space does not permit listing all that I do have, but here are the names of some of the early teachers, other than those already mentioned, and of some who taught the longest: John Kincaid, 1811-12 (killed in action, W.W. 1); Miss M. I. Bigger, 1912-13; Miss A. H. Hunter, 1913-17; Miss L. J. Owen, 1921-29; M. N. Schroeder, 1931-37. During this period the school added another division, Miss M. Moor being the extra teacher, 1934-35, E. Gleeve and M. W. Laine, 1936-41, Miss M. W. Laine and Miss M. E. Peterson. Present teachers are Mrs. M. Tallow and Mrs. E. Vaughan, the latter has taught there since 1962. Present enrollment—45. Grades one to four only are taught, the higher elementary grades going to Mission Creek.

Here's to a bungalow Centennial for Okanagan-Benvoulin School when the time rolls around!

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Here's Some Hints To Aid Diabetic, 8

By DR. GEORGE THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

Our eight-year-old daughter has had two insulin injections a day since she was three. Her arms, legs, etc., are caving in from the effects, and now hard lumps are forming under the skin. Would you know any way to prevent this?—F.M.Q.

This information of hollow spots is called insulin lipodystrophy. Fortunately it never becomes a problem for some. The exact cause is not known, but it occurs chiefly in females or in small boys.

There are various suggestions for avoiding the trouble, and some of them work and some don't in a particular case. Here are the ones with which I am familiar:

1—Use the insulin at room temperature. If (as is usual) it is kept in a refrigerator, take it out long enough in advance to let it come to room temperature.

2—Using a longer needle, hence giving the injections a little deeper may help.

3—A more concentrated insulin, hence a smaller volume, can be tried. If you are using U-40, try U-80 (more concentrated). The type of syringe used should correspond to the strength of the insulin. Don't guess at this. (I have even gone to a U-500 strength.)

4—Change insulin. If she is on NPH, try lente. Or vice versa.

5—Sometimes a special insulin, from pork sources, will help. Most insulin is from a mixture of pork and beef sources.

6—The site of injections should be changed. Do not use the same place too often, since that may be a factor in causing lumps.

This reaction is a disconcerting complication, it should be combatted at once. Sometimes, in some cases, as the patient's weight increases, the hollow spots may fill out, but this cannot be promised.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A year ago I went to the doctor with a fungus condition on my nails. He gave me a prescription which I could have filled five times, and they got better but never entirely cleared up. Although the nails do not flake off, they get sore around the base, but in a few days they are better again.

Will they ever get well, and is it advisable to let them go? I am on a limited budget.—E.S.D.

Fungus infections are by nature stubborn, and they tend to recur unless they are entirely eradicated.

Limited income or not, I would advise you to keep in touch with your doctor periodically. Your first course of treatment made a lot of progress. Further treatment made a lot of progress. Further treatment should bring further improvement and minimize risk of the infection flaring up again.

Dear Dr. Thosteson I have sinus trouble. Am I doing wrong, when I get that terrible pain in the bone over my right eye, to tie a bandanna tightly around my head and put a hot water bottle on my forehead? Pills don't help me, and an ice pack makes it worse. — Mrs. A.G.

Pressure usually relieves pains of this sort, so I don't think you are doing wrong, since you get relief. Are you sure you have sinus trouble. Not all headaches are sinus aches. It may be a neuralgia or a vascular disorder.

Note to B.V.S.: You are worrying needlessly. Gelatin does not "thicken the blood" or cause blood clots.

CANADA'S STORY

B.C. Governor Urged Seizing U.S. Lands

By BOB BOWMAN

In recent years British Columbia has made a tremendous deal with the U.S. to develop more electric power from the Columbia River which flows through the American divide the United States and British Columbia. This entire area might have belonged to Canada if it had not been for a grandstand action on the part of a British naval captain during the War of 1812, described in one of these stories recently.

Even as late as 1861, Governor Douglas of British Columbia hoped that Britain might acquire the territory. He had seen the Americans drive the Hudson's Bay Company from Oregon, and feared that the U.S. would dominate the Pacific coast. On the other hand, if the territory to the south could be secured, then it would be profitable to build a wagon road through the Rockies to the prairies.

Late in 1861 it was feared that there might be war between Britain and the U.S. because an American warship had stopped the British passenger ship Trent on the Atlantic and taken off two representatives of the Confederation states. Douglas seized on the situation to write to the Colonial Secretary on Dec. 23, 1861, and ask permission to capture Puget Sound. He would create a military force from the Royal Engineers who were building roads in British Columbia, and 200 members of the Royal Marine Infantry, then based on San Juan Island.

Once the Puget Sound area had been captured, Douglas believed that he could capture the territory all the way to the Columbia River if Britain would send him two regiments.

Who knows what might have been the result. Fortunately, as unfortunately, as the case may be, Queen Victoria's husband, Prince Albert, acted as peace-maker just before he died, and war was avoided although Britain sent thousands of troops to defend eastern Canada in case of an attack.

OTHER EVENTS ON DEC. 28:
1602—Merchants of Rouen and St. Malo in France were ordered to form a company to develop fur trade in Canada.

1720—British Lords of Trade proposed that Acadians should be expelled from Nova Scotia. (It happened in 1755.)

1835—Britain rejected New Brunswick-Maine boundary award made by King of Netherlands.

1857—Governor Douglas of British Columbia issued an edict that British controlled gold mining along Fraser and Thompson rivers.

1859—Nor-Wester, first newspaper on prairies, was published at Red River.

1863—Spain recognized Mexico's independence.

Second World War
Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder was appointed deputy to supreme commander Gen. Eisenhower. On Oct. 4, 1943, he was captured by Canadian troops. Allied headquarters announced that Lt. Gen. H. D. G. Crerar was to be in command of the Canadian Corps in Italy; the Russian army advanced to within 15 miles of Bucharest.

Canadian Paradox

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada lived through a paradox of prosperity coupled with high unemployment, inflation, and hitherto-unrecognized poverty in 1968. Indications now are that more will be done about the problem in 1969.

When final figures on Canada's economic performance during the last 12 months are made public next spring, they are expected to show a gross national product—total value of goods and services produced—of about $87,000,000,000, up about eight per cent from 1967.

This will amount to a per capita increase in the country's output of nearly $200, to $3,225 from $3,031.

About 3½ per cent of this increase is a measure of inflation. Consumer price increases, however, outpaced the general rise in price levels. The consumer price index in November was 4.3 per cent higher than a year earlier.

Short of the rising price factor, actual output of goods and services in 1967 rose about 4½ per cent. But few if any economists felt the country's productive facilities were pressed to their limit. Even in the high-activity summer months, unemployment amounted to five per cent or more of the labor force.

STUDENTS SEEK JOBS
Summer unemployment was heightened by an unusual influx of students seeking temporary or permanent jobs. This was the post-war baby boom coming to maturity and looking for work.

Canada's post-secondary schools and universities are bursting with energy and talent that will be harnessed in the labor force in the years ahead. The problem is to ensure that jobs are available.

Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said near the year-end that flabbiness must be cut out of the Canadian industrial machine. Among the industrial countries of the world, the proportion of Canada's population actually in the labor force is low. Canada has a high proportion of the threshold of productive work, or retired from it.

What the country needs, Mr. Pepin said, is more enterprise, innovation, and competitiveness in world markets. Canada held its position well in world competition in 1968, with only a modest increase in export prices compared with those of other trading countries.

INFLATION TROUBLES

But domestic inflation at the consumer price level continued to be troublesome. Economists blamed high interest rates and demands for higher wage settlements in labor-management negotiations on the expectation that inflation now is a continuing part of the Canadian economy.

Births And Deaths

Down In November

OTTAWA (CP)—Births and deaths declined in November but marriages increased, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

For the first 11 months of the year, marriages and deaths were higher but births lower than in the corresponding period of 1967.

In November, births dipped to 28,228 from 30,191 last year; marriages climbed to 17,661 from 14,168 and deaths slipped to 11,475 from 12,514.

In the 11-month period, births totaled 339,753, down from 345,916, while marriages rose to 169,349 from 153,991 and deaths to 140,708 from 136,910.

Dec. 28, 1908 . . .

Yonge Street, the road from York, now Toronto, to Lake Simcoe, a distance of 50 miles, was begun 173 years ago today—in 1735. The road ordered by Governor Simcoe was completed by April of the following year. Col. Simcoe named it for Sir George Yonge, then secretary of state for war in the British government. One of the earliest highways in Canada, it is still one of the most important roads in Ontario.

FROM B.C. TO BANGKOK . . .

Canadians stole the day at a recent bazaar in Bangkok when Canadian Embassy employees, Rosemary Stiell (left) of Kelowna and Bonnie Hawkins of Winnipeg sold out of B.C. McIntosh apples at a record rate. For Miss Stiell it was a "pleasant reunion with an old friend" for she was formerly employed in the export sales department of B.C. Tree Fruits for several years, prior to entering service with the Canadian government. Thus far her career has taken her to postings in Karachi, Helsinki, London, Jakarta and Bangkok. Her ambition is to become as widely travelled as the B.C. apples from her home town, Canada's apple capital, which are exported to more than 40 world markets.

ANN LANDERS

Academic Caste System Ought To Be Abolished

Dear Ann Landers: We moved to this fine city during the summer and have found it a friendly place. We want to stay here for both business and social reasons but our children are miserable. John and Mary are respectful, well-behaved children who have never been in any kind of trouble. They have always loved school. Now they hate it. Every morning one or the other (or both) complains of a headache or a stomach ache—anything to stay home. Last week we got to the root of the problem. The teachers in both the third and the fifth grade seat the students according to academic standing. The moment a person walks into the classroom he can see who the "smart" ones are and who the "dumb" ones are. Our son happens to be a bright student so we know he is not "sour grapes". He says he feels sorry for the kids who are in the "dunce seats" as he calls them and we believe him. Our daughter started out somewhere in the middle but has steadily been moved back. Now she is in the "boob row."

My husband is ready to ask his boss for a transfer. He says he can't be happy when his kids are miserable. What do you suggest?—LUBROCK MOTHER

Dear Mother: I agree that this academic caste system is a poor one and ought to be abolished. A committee of mothers who share your point of view should discuss this discriminatory seating arrangement with the teacher. If you fail to get satisfaction, go to the principal. As a rule I am opposed to parents taking their children's side against teachers, because the teacher is usually right. In this instance, however, I feel the children's objections are valid.

Dear Ann Landers: You receive many letters from teenage girls who want to go steady but whose parents are against it. This is a letter from a girl who does NOT want to go steady, but whose parents insist. Will you help me?

My mother and father were born in another country. They say a girl should go with one boy at a time or she will get a bad reputation. They have the idea that a girl who dates several boys gets "worked out" because the boys who have scored pass the word around.

I'm 16 years old now and there is no one person I want to date exclusively. The boy my mother thinks I should go steady with is the worst sex maniac in the whole school but she doesn't know it and I wouldn't tell her. He has told my mother he'd like me as his steady girl and now she won't get off my back. Please help me.—NEED YOU

Dear Need: I don't approve of going steady and I have spelled out the reasons in this column many times. On the other hand, I don't approve of a girl dating 12 different fellows within two weeks either.

The ideal arrangement is to go with five or six different boys and not get too chummy with any of them.

Well-Known Authoress Dies Aged 60

LONDON (AP) — Enid Blyton, author of some of the most popular children's books ever banned in Britain, died at a London nursing home three months after suffering a heart attack.

Miss Blyton kept her age a secret but admitted she was more than 60.

Millions of children here and abroad were raised over the last 30 years on her stories of the naughtiest girl in the school, The Secret Seven, The Famous Five, and Noddy, the little man with a bell on his droopy red cap.

Beginning five years ago some libraries banned her stories because they said the books produced too sweet a view of the world. She laughed off the charges and claimed the books were banned because they were too popular.

She wrote more than 300 children's books which were translated into 63 languages, including Indian dialects and those of Iron Curtain countries. More than 30,000,000 copies of her books were published.

Candlelight Service Symbolic

WESTBANK (Special) — A refreshing service was held on Christmas Eve at 7:30 p.m. in St. George's Anglican Church in Westbank. The Rev. Bruce Howes conducted a candlelight service symbolic of the light of the world as it was passed by the early Christians around the world. Representatives from the Sunday School lit candles to represent various churches ending with a candle for Mr. Solly, the first rector of St. Georges. Then covered candles were passed along by the entire congregation while the choir sang a group of songs of Christmas praise.

Those taking part in the service were H. R. Drought, Dudley Pritchard, Terry Maddock, Christianne Maxson, Anita Swift, Ian Horlock, Freddy Waldron, Brenton Drought, Kathe Springer, Jennifer Drought, John Pritchard and Eddy Gaskell. Mrs. Blanche Moore conducted the Century Singers choir and Howard Young accompanied on the organ.

Women Will Wear Pants In Hotels, Dining Rooms

MONTREAL (CP) — Hotels and dining rooms with restrictions against women wearing pants may have to change some of their regulations for spring.

At a recent collection of spring ensembles here, pants appeared almost everywhere—alone, teamed with jackets or combined with dresses.

In most cases, pants were cut to complement or accentuate a shapely leg, while other styles concealed less-than-perfect ones.

There were superbly tailored pantsuits for daytime wear, in grey, beige and brown. Flagship color combinations of blue, red and white appeared in softer styling.

One outfit was created in silk jersey and featured the now-popular long tunic top. Pants were worn with coats ranging from battle-jacket length to minis. Evening fabrics of brocade and glitter added a festive note for the holiday season.

The red, white and blue color combinations, seen everywhere in Italy last spring, now have caught on in Canada and are being co-ordinated into all types of spring fashions. In many cases the flagship colors are featured prominently on large silk scarves and worn with solid white or navy outfits.

Slacks still feature the wide ankle look, but many are cuffed.

For those who shy away from the trousered look, designers have created pert and fluffy pinaflore-type dresses reminiscent of the Shirley Temple era. These are contrasted sharply by a series of slinky, silk jersey dresses strongly suggesting the Jean Harlow image.

The show, which featured highlights from more than 100 lines exhibited at the regional coat and sportswear market, also emphasized the trend to fitted silhouettes. Coats fit so closely to the body that only the simplest of little dresses can be worn underneath.

Dresses feature relaxed skirt lines, pleated or gently flared, and hemlines are still a good four to six inches above the knees.

Couple Celebrate Silver Wedding

Approximately 20 friends and relatives gathered on Dec. 22 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hayes, 1781 Highland Drive North, to honor them on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Among those in attendance were their bridesmaid, Mrs. F. Chamberlain, and best man, C. D. Clement. The guests of honor received a number of beautiful gifts.

Following the playing of games and renewing of old friendships, refreshments were served by Gaye, Betty-Anne, Patrick and Bob Hayes.

FISH FEAST

LONDON (CP) — Two thousand Chinese carp—bred in Hungary—have been imported by the British agriculture ministry to clear tons of weeds clogging publicly-owned lakes, rivers and waterways. "They're big eaters," said a spokesman. "They can shift the stuff like cows eating grass."

Lots Of Funny Things Happened On Hollywood's Way To 1969

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This was the year in Hollywood when Cary Grant, the screen's perfect husband, was accused by his wife of beating her while on LSD trips. The divorce revelations did nothing to diminish his popularity.

Jack Valenti put across a rating system for movie. Producers began vying for an X, which means a picture is unfit for children and hence enticing for adults.

The new status symbol among film stars became the $1,000,000-a-picture fee. Liz Taylor and Richard Burton welcomed new members to the club: Julie Andrews, Lee Marvin, Paul Newman.

And Barbra Streisand made that exclusive society before being seen on the screen.

Two assassinations prompted

Hollywood to search its soul about violence on the screen.

Nudity in films hit new bottoms: Rod Steiger's, Charlton Heston's, Paul Newman's and so on.

Barbra Streisand's husband struck a new note in press relations by allegedly slugging a photographer for taking too many pictures.

The production code for self-censorship was relaxed almost to the point of apathy. A popular new formula for movie plots: Boy meets girl, boy loses girl, girl gets girl.

And there was almost as much girl-girl and boy-boy kissing on the screen as there was of the usual kind.

Vanessa Redgrave paused between making American-financed movies to lead anti-American parades in London.

KELOWNA DAILY COURIER, SAT., DEC. 28, 1968 PAGE 3A

A new candor was sounded in interviews. Lee Marvin talked about housekeeping with his girl-friend. Alex Cord discussed his decision to marry Joanna Pettet before the birth of their baby.

And just where was it that Eddie Fisher married Connie Stevens?

Frank Sinatra gave up Mia Farrow and Elizabeth Taylor, the former in marriage, the latter in a movie.

Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis pushed all the film stars off the movie magazine covers with her own headline-making.

This was also the year when the Burtons bought a yacht for their dogs, when Katharine Hepburn won another Oscar after a 35-year lapse, when Anna Magnani broke her foot kicking Anthony Quinn, when Laugh-in socked it to the television industry, when Lucille Ball put her two children to work,

And That's Plenty Goulash Says Director Of The Fixer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "There is a saying that the only three-day visas to visit the Hungarian government grants country because the country has only three dishes to eat."

This was the jest of John

His Children Not Hungry

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I'm playing the role because my children are hungry," said Jack Palance of his impersonation of Fidel Castro in the film biography Che.

When doubt was expressed that his children were facing malnutrition, he admitted that he had no pervasive reason for portraying the Cuban leader.

"At this stage in my career, I don't formulate reasons why I take roles; the price was right."

He is that kind of fellow: frank, faintly combative—sort of a Jack Palance type. He was also irritable because of a poison-ivy type of skin rash he had picked up on the Puerto Rico location or at the 20th Century-Fox ranch. And the Castro make-up didn't help, either.

The Palance nose is built up with plastic, and a beard is laboriously glued on every day. "I couldn't grow my own, because part of the picture requires me to have a three-day growth," he said. "Besides, my beard isn't the same pattern as Castro's."

It is a remarkable likeness, forming an eerie complement to Omar Sharif's bearded, bereted Che. Palance was asked if his is a sympathetic portrayal.

"Certainly, it's bound to be sympathetic," he replied. "These men did a remarkable thing, going into Cuba with 17 men and upsetting the whole regime of Batista, who was firmly entrenched. That is undoubtedly one of the great achievements of our time."

The actor said he realized the film may be controversial because U.S. policy has been anti-Castro. He was outspoken about that: "What right have we to decide that communism isn't good for the Cubans? Why should we try to impose our will on the people of another country? It seems to me we've tried to do too much of that."

Palance studied everything he could find about Fidel Castro and the Cuban revolution.

"I read everything I could get my hands on about Castro," he said. "And I saw all the film that was available. The most revealing was the interview he had with Jack Paar on television. It was the only time I could observe him when he wasn't exhorting a crowd."

Frankenheimer, who spent seven months in Hungary to film The Fixer. During that time he consumed an unconscionable amount of goulash, but he enjoyed the movie-making experience.

"If the situation were right, I would go back there and make another picture," said the director. "I found the Hungarian people to be extremely friendly, and the film workers were eager and helpful. We received excellent co-operation all along the line."

MONEY PROBLEMS

Frankenheimer and his partner, producer Edward Lewis, were sold on The Fixer as soon as they had read the Bernard Malamud novel in galley form. They had previously tried to transfer another Malamud book, The Assistant, into the film medium, but were unable to acquire financing. It was no easy matter with The Fixer either.

"After I finished Grand Prix, Eddie and I proposed The Fixer to MGM; we were turned down," said Frankenheimer. "But then the president of MGM, Robert O'Brien, read the book and was sold on it. He said MGM would back the project if we could make it 'for a price'."

SOUGHT SOVIET LOCALE

Lewis and Frankenheimer agreed to do so, and they began searching for topography and cityscapes that would resemble 1916 Russia. They wanted to film inside Russia itself, but they were told "via the grapevine" that such a request would be denied. The reason: The Fixer deals with anti-Semitism, which is said to still exist in Russia.

"We figured if we got a turn-down from Russia, that would scare off any of the satellite countries," said the director.

"After looking at Czechoslovakia, Romania, Hungary, as well as Yugoslavia and Austria, we decided that Hungary offered the best backgrounds. The deal was arranged through the Tower international organization headed by Cyrus Eaton."

Frankenheimer went to Budapest with key production personnel from France, but most of the film workers were Hungarian. Orders had to be repeated three times—in English, French and Hungarian.

"I speak French, so that helped," he remarked. "Hungarian is impossible to learn unless you begin as a child. It has no relationship to any other European language, except possibly Finnish."

Frankenheimer spent 100 days of filming on the picture, which stars Alan Bates, Dirk Bogarde and Elizabeth Hartman.

The Fixer Met O'Brien's stipulation "for a price." It was "something under $2,500,000," a reasonable sum for a top production these days.

Lurid Message For Audience

NEW YORK (AP) — Rochelle Owens, an extremist in lurid imagery, conjures a steamy nightmare of human corruption in Beelch (say Bel-lek) which opened recently at off-Broadway's Gate Theatre.

The mild-mannered writer previously got the populace buzzing with Futzi!—an allegory about injustice wherein a lad loved a sow. This time, against an African jungle background of eccentric unreality, Miss Owens makes a broadside assault upon society's secret depravity.

"Life's a jungle," one bit of dialogue unnecessarily specifies, while elsewhere in the narrative one of the spectacularly garbed barbarians remarks, "There is no one who is without perversion."

To make sure the message isn't missed, the author unfolds, with what seems sadistic relish, a sequence of incidents ranging through multiple sexual aberration to devious forms of brutal death.

NUDITY AND CANDOR

The complete candor of the dialogue is matched by some of the most forthright nudity dared since the vogue began.

Director Don Signore doesn't get his company beyond much more than workshop warmup until the second half of the show, and even then the quality of performance remains woefully lopsided.

SIGNS MODEL

Donyale Luna, 22, a high-fashion model, has been signed by United Artists to play the provocative role of Oenoea in the film Satyricon.

GERMAN INVASION

German actress Ingrid Pitt, 24, has moved out of her villa in Madrid to invade the English scene. She has moved into a South Kensington apartment in order to continue filming in England. Her first major film, Where Eagles Dare, opens in London late next month. In it Ingrid plays an Allied agent posing as a German barmaid.

He's Popular Even With Flu

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — British actor Alan Bates spent a large part of his first Hollywood visit in his hotel room, nursing the Hong Kong flu.

"I did get to take a ride along Sunset Boulevard," he commented. Because of his indisposition, he saw little else, nor did Hollywood see much of him.

Bates is one of the most admired of the young English actors. He also is one of the least known despite a string of top notch parts in successful films.

"The reason may be because I've played such diverse roles," he remarked. "That's really what I'm interested in, not the money. Oh, I suppose you hear a lot of actors say that, but it is true in my case. I enjoy money — don't get me wrong. But to play a good part I am willing to take a cut in salary against a percentage of the profits."

"I think that makes sense: to share some of the risk on a worthwhile project that might not be assured of commercial success. I did that on my last picture Women in Love, a D. H. Lawrence story that wouldn't have been made if we hadn't all worked for less."

The diverse roles of Bates have ranged from the wide-eyed square of Zorba the Greek to the libertine of Georgy Girl, from the sullen shepherd of Far from the Madding Crowd to the persecuted prisoner of The Fixer. The latter was the reason for his visit here. His performance may win an Academy Award nomination.

He arrived in full beard, which may be another reason he went largely unrecognized. The beard was required for his last three roles—Richard III at Shakespearean Festival at Stratford, Ont., The Fixer and Women in Love—and he intends to divest himself of it as soon as he is assured of no retakes on the last one.

Though, quiet-spoken, Bates appears to be strong-minded where his career is concerned. He has had a few offers to make films in Hollywood, but so far has found nothing to attract him.

Jonathan Much More Amusing During Early Part Of Evening

NEW YORK (AP) — Jonathan Winters seems to be a much more amusing fellow in the early evening than in the later pater. It may work out that CBS's Jonathan Winters Show got the better part of the deal in the time swap with Hawaii Five-O.

The variety hour had its premiere in the earlier Thursday period, and its star had some funny turns, one at the top of the show when he was extemporaneously answering questions from the audience and later when he was playing a drunken liquor inspector in a sketch.

For a windup there was a refreshing sequence when our roly-poly hero gathered around him members of Roy Rogers and Dale Evans family to tell the story of Hansel and Gretel. He did such a terrible job that he was roundly booed by the kids at the end—a nice change of pace after all the lovable, well-rehearsed story-tellers to whom we have been exposed of recent date.

SPOOF DE GAULLE

The hour contained another especially bright number—a quick review in comedy blackouts of some major events of the year. It encompassed France's money troubles with a de Gaulle spoof. It made a joke about the hijacking of airliners—a Castro-like creature was shown sticking a gun at Santa's head and ordering his sleigh south. And it even took in the Onassis-Kennedy wedding—

there was Winters in a little Lord Fauntleroy suit standing on a pier and shouting through a bull horn in the direction of a large yacht anchored nearby: "Can Caroline and John come out and play?"

Hawaii Five-O, which took over Winters' old spot last Wednesday night, continues to be another stereotyped cops-and-robbers story with only those lush island location shots to give it any distinction.

Real Ponderosa At Lake Tahoe May Prove To Be Tourist Lure

NEW YORK (AP) — If you believe what you see most Sunday nights, the Ponderosa is a vast, fertile spread in the Lake Tahoe region of Nevada, Ben Cartwright, the cattle baron, and his two stalwart lads spend their time mending fences, picking up strays and saving school-marmas in distress and are awfully rich, although heaven knows how because they rarely seem to be tending the cows.

As it turns out, Ottawa-born Lorne Greene, Dan Blocker and Michael Landon, who have been Bonanza's Cartwright family for the last 10 years, are developing the Ponderosa in a way that makes old Ben look like a primitive herdsman.

The acting trio, in partnership with NBC and some land-owning outsiders, are developing a huge tract at Lake Tahoe into a tourist attraction. A replica of the Bonanza ranch has been built, and there is an entertainment centre. Last season it was visited by some 200,000 rubberneckers—and that's just the beginning.

"The three of us, realizing how much interest there was in the Ponderosa, started talking about constructing a replica of the ranch house," Greene explained. "Our original idea was to have a band in booking tours to the United States from other countries—Bonanza is very popular abroad—and after the tourists had a look at the rest of the country, take them to the Ponderosa, dress them in ranch clothes and give them a week in the old west."

PLAN DUDE RANCH

That is full in the future and so is a plan about running the place as a working dude ranch. But even now some sidelines are spinning out of the project, including merchandising food products using the Ponderosa name.

Greene is also a partner in a travelling Ponderosa ranch—a collapsible ranch house that travels on two trailer trucks and can be set up, complete with reproductions of the show's furniture, at state fairs, rodeos and home shows.

Then there are the Bonanza steak houses, in which Greene is an officer and stockholder. This is a chain for franchised eating places that also parlay the show's name.

Thus, Greene, now in his early 50s, is a millionaire, all on the strength of one television series. And so are two other unknowns of 10 years ago, Blocker and Landon, although their investment interests move generally into different areas.

WORKED FOR CBC

Greene was Canada's most popular newscaster and chief announcer for the CBC during the Second World War.

He became interested in theatre when he was studying chemical engineering in college and upon graduation won a fellowship at the Neighborhood Playhouse in New York.

He returned to Canada, but found acting jobs scarce, and he entered broadcasting.

A chance encounter during a visit in New York led to a one-shot role in an old Studio One television drama with the result that Greene quit his excellent radio employment—and never looked back. Eleven years ago, after considerable TV and stage experience, he was cast in his first western—a now forgotten film called The Hard Man. This led in turn to a guest part in Wagon Train, which so impressed producer David Dortort that he cast him as Ben Cartwright.

SHOW GOES ON

Greene does not worry about being permanently identified with the Cartwright role, although he believes the end is nowhere in sight for the series. His contract still has two years to run with the series, but since Bonanza seems to have a permanent niche in the Nielsen top 10 shows, the series could receive the kind of longevity associated with daytime soap operas.

"I think the show goes on because people like us—or the characters we play," Greene said. "Whether it is a boy or a girl; a man or a woman, there is somebody in our cast they can identify with."

"Of course, too, people enjoy the show because it shows a simple way of life, a time when values were black and white, bad or good. That's quite different from the problems most people live with today."

Drama Critic Wins Award

NEW YORK (AP) — Murtin Gottfried, drama critic for Women's Wear Daily, was named winner Tuesday of the George Jean Nathan Award for dramatic criticism for the 1967-1968 theatrical year.

Prof. E. D. H. Johnson, chairman of the English department of Princeton University and chairman of the selection committee, announced that the award was given for Gottfried's book A Theatre Divided — the Post-war American Stage. The prize is worth $4,500.

Indian Youth Goes Star Crazy

BOMBAY (CP) — The number of "star-crazy" Indian boys and girls seems to be increasing.

Recently, the Bombay police sent three teen-age girls from distant Bihar province back to their homes. They had arrived in Bombay to meet film stars and explore chances of entering the movies themselves. The girls had left home without the knowledge of their parents.

In another instance, a pretty Calcutta girl arrived here and asked a taxi driver to take her to the suburban home of a leading actress. He took her instead to police headquarters, where she admitted she had run away from home.

Police say that every year dozens of boys and girls come to Bombay, India's largest movie centre, under similar circumstances. One official estimates that the number of such fans bent on achieving a quick breakthrough to the silver screen averages 500 every year.

A college student from Punjab province was reported to have knocked at the door of Saira Bhanu, a leading actress, and insisted on seeing her. When the servants turned him away, he squatted on the road and offered "passive resistance" for six hours.

At least two instances of rebuffed girls trying to commit suicide have been reported.

One girl, a college student from Bihar province, was found lying on a railway track 20 miles from Bombay just before the Madras-Bombay Express sped past the spot.

A New Delhi girl tried to poison herself after she failed to meet a Bombay film director.

The principal of a Bombay women's college blamed film journals for spreading romantic and exaggerated notions about film stars.

Many Indian colleges have banned the sale and circulation of glossy film journals within their campuses.

The Bananas An Education On TV In More Ways Than One

The Bananas, an exciting new experimental program for young people created by writer and actor Rod Coneybeare, will make its debut on the CBC television network, Jan. 2, at 4:30 p.m.

The Bananas are four eager, goony adults who impersonate everything, investigate everything, and think everything. The stars are Toronto comedy-revue artists John Davies, Francois Klanfer and Bonnie Carol Case, and Montreal actress-singer-dancer and model Melody Greer.

"The Bananas is an experimental series," says CBC-TV schools and youth producer Robert Gibbons. "At present we're only planning six or seven shows. We hope it'll catch on with viewers (adults included) because it's possible the show will become a regular weekly feature in the 1969-70 season." Gibbons is also producer of pre-schoolers favorite Mr. Dress-Up.

According to Coneybeare every sketch in The Bananas is a piece of philosophy or an attitude that will be good for youngsters to absorb. "The show really is an attempt to teach them attitudes through humor."

"This is an experimental type thing in every way," Coneybeare says. "In fact, it will be run almost as though a bunch of kids had taken over a TV studio. We're trying to somehow get into a free-flowing, interesting kind of expression of the non-sequitur attitude of today through sketches without beginning, middle or end."

Coneybeare is best known for his work on CBC radio's Rod and Charles Show, for young people. He is also the voices of Rusty the rooster and Jerome the giraffe on CBC-TV's veteran pre-school program The Friendly Giant.

One of the features of The Bananas which will attempt to give its young viewers a look at human attitudes from a different viewpoint is The Reverses—in which children act like adults and vice versa. For instance in the first program the son arrives home after a hard day's work in the sand-box, all set for a quiet evening with soft drinks and the comics, only to find he must punish his father for riding his bike.

Another humorous feature is The Big Mouth who, when fed a wheelbarrow of foods by The Bananas, pronounces interesting facts, quotes and educational information. In addition The Bananas have, at their beck and call, day and night, an Official Certified Genuine Grade-A Gorilla who has moved into civilization.

The Bananas series also has a theme song called—what else but "The Bananas"—written by Jim Pirie and Coneybeare. Al Maitland is the Great Announcer, an off-camera guide through Bananaland and the only semblance of logic and continuity, although we know that deep down he is a Banana also.

LONDON (AP) — Swedish actress Britt Eklund has been granted an uncontested divorce from British comedian Peter Sellers on grounds of cruelty. Sellers, 43, was not in court for the hearing. Miss Eklund, 25, came from Stockholm to attend.

The curvaceous blonde married Sellers in February, 1964, after he divorced his first wife. Miss Eklund was given custody of their four-year-old daughter, Victoria, but the court ordered that Sellers be given liberal access to the child.

Private World Of Royalty To Be Seen Via TV Eye

LONDON (CP) — The private world of the Queen at work and leisure will be made public for the first time on television screens in 1969, a year that will see the biggest royal event since the 1953 Coronation.

The TV program, made jointly by the BBC and Britain's commercial network, will take viewers inside the machinery of monarchy as part of the buildup to the July 1 investiture of Prince Charles as Prince of Wales. It will be shown in Britain a week before the ceremony and may be seen later in North America.

Except for a state visit to Austria by the Queen next May, no major royal engagements are scheduled for 1969. Everything is focused on the pageantry in Wales, which is expected to reap a rich harvest of tourist business on the side.

Preparations for the investiture—a kind of mini-coronation, though much rarer than real coronations in Britain's history—made up a good deal of royal news in 1968, which otherwise was sadly marked by the death of the popular Princess Marina, mother of Princess Alexandra and the Duke of Kent.

Marina was 61 when she died Aug. 27 of a brain tumor. Her illness had been unknown to the British public and she had appeared a few weeks earlier at her favorite event of the year, the Wimbledon tennis championships.

DASH OF DRAMA

A dash of drama was added to the investiture preparations by the threatening voices of some militant Welsh nationalists. Their activities next July still pose a serious question for security officials.

Prince Charles spent much of 1968 preparing for the increased public responsibilities his coming-of-age will bring. In a new kind of royal tour, he studied the workings of government departments, went underground to meet miners and subway workers and paid his first visit to Wales, which he will tour extensively after the ceremony at 12th century Caernarvon Castle.

The Queen carried out one of her most successful foreign tours in 1968, encountering enthusiastic Latin American crowds wherever she and Prince Philip went on their 18-day, 18,000-mile November journey through Chile and Brazil. Prince Philip joined the Queen after attending the opening of the Mexico Olympics.

One British correspondent went so far as to say: "My own feeling is that the Queen is probably more popular in Chile than in England, though it may be heresy to say so."

ANNE LEAVES SCHOOL

Richard Gott continued his summing-up in The Guardian by suggesting the British authorities should take swift advantage of this royal softening-up of export territory, perhaps taking a leaf out of Canada's book. He noted that the week before the Queen arrived in Santiago, Chile, the biggest Canadian trade mission ever assembled landed to begin a tour of nine Latin American countries.

Princess Anne left school in 1968, doing less well than her elder brother in matriculation exams. No plans have yet been announced for her future, but she has just completed a six-week French course, putting in gruelling 10-hour days to bring her school French up to conversational fluency.

Young Prince Andrew, 8, started preparatory school and Prince Edward, 4, youngest of the royal children, began lessons with a governess.

The Queen Mother's only trip abroad in 1968 was to Denmark to attend the wedding of Princess Bebedikte. Her engagements at home included presiding with Princess Margaret at a palace reception in June for 50 Canadian veterans who commanded British army units in the 1944 invasion of Europe.

Princess Margaret had no major engagements in the year, and Princess Alexandra's principal royal task was opening British Week in Stockholm at the end of September. She had been scheduled to represent the Queen at the independence of Mauritius and Madagascar, cancelled because of local unrest.

'Chosen People' Suffer In Midst Of Decadence

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Thick double walls surrounded ancient Babylon, its gleaming towers rearing astride the Euphrates River. From the Ishtar Gate, the broad avenue of processions ran through the city's lavish centre, flanked by stately, palatial courts and temples to Tiamat and Marduk.

There, in the midst of fashion and idolatry, imposing wealth, vaunted sciences and gay, uninhibited pleasures and luxuries, the ragged, captive people of God dwelt for half a century in servitude, longing for a lost dream.

"By the waters of Babylon, there we sat down and wept," says Psalm 137, telling of the despondency and misery of that time.

The prophet Ezekiel, in his bleak vision, saw his nation turned into a valley of death, littered with broken skeletons, wailing:

"Our bones are dried up, and our hope is lost."

Yet, out of that desolation, he and other prophets of that dark period from 587 to 539 B.C. the dauntless Daniel and a brilliant, tender prophet whose name remains unknown—caught glimpses of a coming greater glory than ever.

"They who wait for the Lord shall renew their strength," wrote the Second Isaiah. "They shall mount up with wings like eagles, they shall run and not be weary, they shall walk and not faint."

The bold, perceptive Daniel, singled out for special duty in the retinue of the conquering Babylonian monarch, Nebuchadnezzar, also saw in a dream the tracery of an amazingly majestic future. He related:

"Behold, with the clouds of heaven, there came One like a Son of Man, and He came to the Ancient of Days. . . . And to Him was given dominion and glory and kingdom, that all peoples, nations and language should serve Him; His dominion is an everlasting dominion which shall not pass away."

A strangely nebulous, yet wondrous image, rising from the hidden subconscious in a day of abject thralldom and defeat, yet whispering of a marvellous theophany, seen by Christians as pointing to Christmas, the birth of Jesus the Christ.

"A bruised reed He will not break and a dimly burning wick He will not quench, till He has established justice in the earth," wrote the anonymous one, also called Deuterio-Isaiah. "The Lord has laid on Him the iniquity of us all."

It carried a lingering hope and unrelinquished conviction, smoldering beneath the bumptious, lusty and extravagant panoply of pagan Babylon. Unlike Daniel, most of the captive Jewish population eked out a bare existence as farm laborers, servants, street sweepers, pedlars, wood carriers and building crew, living in drab hovels with meagre diets.

Despite their forlorn regrets and bitter resignation, the far-seeing, unnamed prophet, whose writings form the latter part of the book named for the earlier Isaiah, from chapter 40 through 55, offered hopeful consolation.

"Comfort, comfort my people, says your God," he said. "A voice cries in the wilderness prepare the way of the Lord. . . . Every valley shall be lifted up, and every mountain and hill be made low."

More of those veiled, tenuous inklings, words applied more than 500 years later to Jesus.

Daniel who remained a regal adjutant through Babylon's collapse in 539 B.C. under the expanding new Persian empire and into the rule of its more benevolent King Cyrus, conceived of an approaching, "everlasting kingdom" over all the earth.

Generally, the messianic yearnings looked toward some divinely exalted, blissful world sovereignty, but the unnamed Second Isaiah added a shocking note to that concept, saying:

"He had no form or comeliness that we should look at Him, and no beauty that we should desire Him. He was despised and rejected by men; a Man of Sorrows, acquainted with grief. . . ."

"But He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities; upon Him was the chastise-ment that made us whole, and with His stripes we are healed. . . ."

"Yet it was the will of the Lord to bruise Him. . . . When He makes Himself an offering for sin. . . . He shall see the fruit of the travail of His soul and be satisfied; by His knowledge shall the righteous One, My Servant, make many to be accounted righteous; and He shall bear their iniquities."

These strange, anticipatory insights, along with others, are known as the "servant" passages, which Christians see as portraying the coming persecution and death of Jesus in union with humanity for its evildoing.

Detroit Dominates Game But Flyers Gain 3-3 Tie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Philadelphia Flyers took the lead three times but couldn't hold it Friday night as Detroit Red Wings blasted through for a 3-3 National Hockey League tie.

But it was a frustrating night for the Red Wings. They outshot the Flyers 27 to 20, outmuscled them and carried most of the play but never could get in the lead.

Pete Stelmowski, scoring his ninth goal of the season, fired the equalizer with 5:22 to play.

Other Detroit goals were by Gary Unger and Rich LeClerc while Leo Rochford, Forbes Kennedy and Allan Stanley counted for Philadelphia.

Stelmowski's counter came after heavy pressure by Detroit during which Bernie Parent made great saves on Gordie Howe on a power play at the start of the third period and shortly after on Pete Mahovich.

The game was nine minutes, seven seconds old when Rochford counted on a 30-foot slap shot to the corner. Unger tied it for the Wings at 4:49 of the second period, deflecting in Nick Libett's pass, but Kennedy faked Roy Edwards out of position to again put Flyers in front.

LeClerc took a Frank Mahovich pass 61 seconds later to tie the score on a point-blank drive. Stanley made it 3-2 on a power-play goal at 15:41 and it stayed that way until Stelmowski scored the equalizer. The game didn't change the standings.

Meanwhile a parade of NHL players made their way to and from sick bay.

The league's top scorer, Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks, may resume play next week but will be on a liquid diet for the next six weeks because of a wired-up broken jaw. He'll be sipping food through a straw.

Hull caught an elbow from Toronto's Mike Pelyk in a Wednesday game. His doctor said Hull may have a breathing problem because of a previously broken nose and this may lengthen his layoff.

Toronto Maple Leafs may miss centres Dave Keon and Mike Walton for a game or so and also winger Floyd Smith for at least 10 days. Keon has a groin pull, Walton has missed three games with flu and Smith is recovering from torn chest muscles after being hit by Hull.

Goalie Ed Giacomin, who was declared fit to return to action with Montreal Canadiens after suffering a broken finger in the stick hand early this month, Goalie Ernie Wakely, with the club since Dec. 4, has been returned to Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League. Tony Esposito will share Vachon's duties.

Right winger Rod Gilbert and goalie Ed Giacomin, both sidelined by injuries earlier, will play in weekend games, New York Rangers said. Gilbert has been out nine games with a chipped left ankle bone while Giacomin missed three games with a bruised left shoulder.

Gilles Villeneuve, who filled in for Giacomin, has been returned to Buffalo of the American League.

Boston Bruins made wholesale changes in their roster as veteran Johnny Bucyk joined three team-mates on the injury list. Bucyk was declared lost for games with St. Louis Saturday and in Detroit Sunday because of a severe chesty horse.

With forwards Eddie Shack and Tommy Williams and defenceman Gary Doak also sidelined with injuries, Boston called forwards Grant Erickson, 21, and Jim Harrison, 20, and defenceman Rick Smith, 20, from Oklahoma in the Central League.

Besides Boston's game, New York Rangers visit Montreal Canadiens, Los Angeles Kings are at Toronto against the Maple Leafs, Chicago Black Hawks visit Minnesota North Stars and Oakland Seals go to Pittsburgh Penguins today.

On Sunday Montreal visits New York, Boston is at Detroit, Los Angeles plays in Chicago and Oakland takes on the Flyers at Philadelphia.

Bucks Sign Strong For Blue-line Depth

Defenceman Wayne Strong has rejoined the Kelowna Buckaroos of the B.C. Junior Hockey League.

Buckaroo manager Scotty Angus said Monday Strong will be with the team for the remainder of the season. The second-year defenceman, who quit the team after playing the entire season last year, will join the team immediately for practice.

If Strong can work himself into shape, he could be with the Bucks when they travel to Penticton Wednesday for a game against the Broncos.

Kelowna has suffered from a lack of defencemen all season and has been forced to use several forwards on the blue-line when necessary. The three regular defencemen on the team now are Dave Larock, Dave Angus and Earl Morris.

Morris is a rookie while Larock and Angus are both second-year men.

Dave Cousins and Danny McCarthy have played defence at various times during the season to ease the load carried by the three regular rearguards.

Angus said he was "overjoyed" to have Strong return to the team.

"Wayne was an effective defenceman last season and he should be a great help after he gets into shape," Angus said.

"The addition of an experienced defenceman can do nothing but help us for the remainder of this season."

The Buckaroos are currently tied for third place in the B.C.J.H.L. standings with the Vernon Essos. Two points ahead, in second place, are the Penticton Broncos. Three points ahead of the Broncos are the Victoria Cougars.

The Buckaroos have two games in hand on Vernon and could move into a tie for second place by beating Penticton Wednesday.

Three players who missed Thursday's game against Penticton are expected to play Wednesday. They are Pat McMahon, Danny McCarthy and Chuck Carigan.

McMahon has a bad shoulder and Carigan a pulled groin. McCarthy could not get back from Trail in time for Thursday's game.

Ken Philip is nursing a bad ankle and will probably return to action after the Penticton encounter.

Many Things Uncertain As AFL Playoff Nears

NEW YORK (AP) — The condition of the weather, Daryle Lamonia and Warren Wells remained uncertain today as Oakland Raiders and New York Jets prepared for Sunday's American Football League championship game.

Both teams missed a final workout at Shea Stadium today because the frozen field was covered with a tarpaulin. If bad weather continues, the tarp won't be removed until just before game time.

NBC will televise the game starting at 1 p.m. EST. The field was covered Friday morning as soon as snow started falling. Rain was forecast for today although the weather bureau said it should be fair and cold Sunday.

As thorny a problem as the weather is, coach John Rauch and the Raiders were more concerned about Lamonia, the man who makes the passing attack, and Wells, one of his big helpers.

Lamonia hurt the thumb on his throwing hand in the fourth quarter of Oakland's Western Division playoff game with Kansas City last Sunday. He didn't return to the game although no one really noticed it because Oakland had such a big lead.

Wells, Oakland's ace split end, hasn't practiced all week because of a heel injury. Wells was kicked in the third quarter of the Kansas City game, but the injury hadn't shown up until Tuesday.

LAKERS WIN — EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta teams won three of four games Friday in the first round of the University of Alberta Golden Bears Invitational high school basketball tournament.

Penticton Lakers from British Columbia were the exception, beating Edmonton Strathcona Lords 69-51.

CAME WITH SEAWAY — Alewives are relative newcomers to the Great Lakes, arriving less than 10 years ago with the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Lou Cavalari, veteran Toronto trainer, found himself deep in controversy as the year ended. Dancer's Image, the colt he trained for owner Peter Fuller of Boston, won the Kentucky Derby but was disqualified over what analysts said was an illegal medication in the system. Cavalari sent the Dancer out for the Preakness and the son of Native Dancer finished third, only to be disqualified again, this time for interfering with another horse.

Dancer's Image was retired with an ailing front ankle. In Canada, Viceregal, son of Northern Dancer, the Canadian-bred who won the Kentucky Derby in record time in 1964, went out eight times as a two-year-old and won eight races. He earned $117,048, a single-season record for Canada. And the idyl of Annabelle ended.

The top-rated racehorse, purchased as the patron saint of losers by two Toronto newspapermen and entered in the Derby, was injured before she could travel to Louisville.

George Knudson of Toronto won the Phoenix and Tucson opens, then took a back seat to Al Balding as they paired to win the World Cup in Rome. Balding took individual honors. Bob Charles of New Zealand, the patron saint of left-handers, won the Canadian Open with a six-under-par 274, the only lefty ever to win a major tournament. Jim Doyle of Winnipeg won the Canadian amateur and Marlene Stewart Strellt of Fonthill, Ont., swept both the Canadian open and close. Ben Korn, 21, of Clarkson, Ont., became the first Canadian ever named to the all-America golf team for United States college players. Sandra Post of Oakville, Ont., won the Ladies' Professional Golfers' Association tournament and was named rookie of the year on the U.S. women's golf trail.

The baseball world was stunned when Montreal won 21 National League franchise. The club, named the Expos, will play in refurbished Jarry Park until a domed stadium can be built. There is only one other pro club in Canada—Vancouver Mounties of the Pacific Coast League.

Two WHL Games Hard Fought But They Didn't Change Things

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two hard-fought games in the Western Hockey League Friday night ended in ties and left league standings unchanged.

In Vancouver, the Canucks and Portland Buckaroos fought to a 3-3 deadlock while in Phoenix, the Roadrunners and San Diego Gulls tied it up 4-4.

The games leave San Diego and Portland tied for first place with 42 points and Vancouver three points off the pace in third.

In Vancouver, 9,481 fans saw the teams end the first period tied 1-1, the second 2-2 and the third 3-3.

Bryan Hextall, Marc Reaume and Len Lundie scored for the Canucks. Mel Pearson recorded two of the Portland goals with Roger Bellerive adding a single.

Hextall opened the scoring early in the first period when he banged a shot past Portland netminder Dave Kelly. Pearson retaliated with his first goal less than four minutes later.

The Buckaroos made it 2-1 in the second period on Bellerive's tally as the Portland player popped the puck between George Gardiner's legs through a maze of players.

Reaume tied it up again for the Canucks and it wasn't until midway through the third period that Pearson broke the deadlock with his second goal.

Phoenix got goals from Bob Charlebois, his 18th, and Tom McVie.

San Diego replied in the first on tallies by John MacMillan and Al Nicholson.

The Roadrunners had a 4-2 lead midway through the second period on goals by Bob Kabel and Andre Pronovost.

Warren Hynes narrowed the margin for San Diego and Warren Sinclair's power play goal early in the third gave the Gulls a tie.

HEROICS, HEARTBREAK

By BRUCE LEVETT

Canadian Press Sports Editor

The battle for medals at Grenoble and Mexico City; the idyl of ball club for a major league no major league hockey team for Vancouver; heroics and heartbreak, victory and defeat—this was sport in Canada in 1968.

It was also Herve Filion of Angers, Que., breaking the world record for the number of trotting victories in a year; Al Balding of Toronto showing George Knudson the way as the two captured the World Cup of golf for Canada in Rome.

It was Merger, coming out of the West to win the Queen's Plate and Fergie Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., winning 20 games for Chicago Cubs for the second year in a row.

And it was Nancy Greene from the mountains of Roseland, B.C., winning a gold and a silver in the Olympic cup and her second World Cup of skiing before calling a halt to her illustrious career.

Here is a sport-by-sport breakdown:

WINTER OLYMPICS — Canada won a gold and a silver medal—both by Nancy Greene in skiing—and a third-place bronze by the national hockey team. Karen Magnusson, 15, of North Vancouver, and Jay Humphrey, Vancouver-born but skating out of Toronto, did the best job turned in by the rest of the team. Each finished seventh in figure-skating.

SUMMER OLYMPICS — Three Ontario horsemen—Jim Davy, Jim Elder and Tom Givens—captured Canada's only gold medal. Heartbroken Elaine Tanner, the swimmer from Vancouver and Winnipeg, narrowly missed gold twice, winding up with second-place silver medals. Swimmer Ralph Hutton of Ocean Falls, B.C., won a silver and the women's relay team a third-place bronze.

HOCKEY — Montreal Canadiens won the Stanley Cup with four consecutive one-goal victories over suburban St. Louis Blues. Chicago centre Stan Mikita, for the second year in a row, captured the Ross, Lady Byng and Hart trophies, top honors in the NHL. Gordie Howe, as the 1968-69 season opened, scored his 700th goal to account for more than 10 per cent of all the goals scored by Detroit Red Wings since their inception in 1926. Vancouver, for a second year, failed to pick up the troubled Oakland franchise. Victoria's Tigres won the Allan Cup and Niagara Falls Flyers the Memorial Cup. University of Alberta won the Canadian intercollegiate title.

FOOTBALL

Rookie Vic Washington dropped the ball, picked it up and ran 79 yards to lead Ottawa Rough Riders to a 24-21 Grey Cup victory over Calgary Stampeders. Queen's Golden Gaels of Kingston topped Waterloo Lutheran Golden Hawks in Canadian intercollegiate football, taking the Vanier Cup on a 42-14 victory in the College Bowl.

St. Vital Bulldogs hammered Sudbury Spartans 63-7 for the Canada senior title. Saskatchewan Hilltops defeated Ottawa Sooners 27-19 for the junior crown and Winnipeg Hawks defeated Quebec's Lachine Lakers 60-7 in the juvenile final. Jake Gaudaur gave up his Hamilton Tiger-Cats connections to become commissioner of the Canadian Football League.

CURLING — Ron Northcott of Calgary—with Jim Shields, Bernie Sparks and Fred Storey backing him up—won nine of 10 matches to capture the Canadian men's curling championship, then went on to add the international championship by defeating Chuck Hay of Scotland. Hazel Jamison and her family rink from Edmonton won the women's title; Bill

Hope of Trenton, Ont., captured the schoolboy crown, and the Larry McGarr rink from Kinderley, Sask., repeated as winners of the mixed title.

GOLF — George Knudson of Toronto won the Phoenix and Tucson opens, then took a back seat to Al Balding as they paired to win the World Cup in Rome. Balding took individual honors. Bob Charles of New Zealand, the patron saint of left-handers, won the Canadian Open with a six-under-par 274, the only lefty ever to win a major tournament. # Trouble With Tacky Mess Occurs After Floor Put In

TILE CEMENT

QUESTION: About six months ago, my husband put asphalt tile on our cellar floor. Ever since, we have been busy wiping off the glue which has worked up between some of the joints in certain areas. How long will this go on, or are there ways to stop it?

ANSWER: This could continue for quite some time. I'm sorry to say, too bad it wasn't put down evenly. The bigger the lumps, the longer it will ooze. The only sure halt is to remove the tiles in the affected area, scrape up excess cement and replace. Messy.

LEATHER CHAIR

QUESTION: How do you clean a leather chair? Mine is getting along in years to the extent the pores are showing up where the surface sheen is wearing away.

ANSWER: It's hard to beat saddle soap as a leather cleaner, also, many good leather dressings sold in supermarkets, housewares sections and some hardware stores. But none will graft a new skin over the pores. They'll just make the chair look a lot cleaner.

CABINETS NEED CLEANING

QUESTION: Our kitchen cabinets are natural oak, finished with varnish. What will safely remove various stains and smudges?

ANSWER: Turpentine is one of the best and safest cleaners anywhere.

GAY BASEMENT FLOOR

QUESTION: I would like to carpet our basement play room, using only samples of carpets. Instead of the big job of sewing them all together, couldn't I just stick them down on the floor as is?

ANSWER: Why not? Quite an idea, too. Use regular tile cement, just as if you were putting down asphalt tile. If a corner comes loose here and there, just recement and weigh it down until done.

CAN'T STOP PEELING DOOR

QUESTION: I have an overhead garage door of hollow core plywood. I have great trouble keeping paint on it. Again last year I sanded smooth, under-coated then used top grade latex paint. This year it has begun peeling again. Any suggestions?

ANSWER: The only suggestion I can come up with is that perhaps there are some edges, seams or joints which are either unpainted or uncaulked or unpainted so water can work inside. The only reason why paint peels is because the wood underneath is damp. I suggest a careful inspection with this in mind.

FIELDSTONE FIREPLACE

QUESTION: Our new house has a fieldstone fireplace and flagstone hearth. How can I protect against dirt and especially greasy stains?

ANSWER: One good way is to treat with a clear masonry sealer which contains silicones; available at lumber yards and masonry supplies dealers.

RUST-STREAKING NAILS

QUESTION: How can I protect my white-painted siding against rusty streaks from nails?

ANSWER: The best way is to use rustproof nails. The second best way is to countersink the nailheads slightly, fill the dent with putty and cover with a dab of shellac or paint. This is usually enough to seal nailheads from moisture.

PATCH OVERHEAD DOOR

QUESTION: There is a bad spot in one section of my overhead garage door. I can cut it out with my sabre saw and make a patch of wood which will wit reasonably well, but how do I secure it in place?

ANSWER: First coat the edges of the cut-out place and the patching piece with spray adhesive. Then fit the piece in. If it's a good fit, chances are that's all you'll have to do, but to be extra sure, cover all four joints with the tape used to bridge cracks in plaster, on both sides of the door. When you repaint you won't even see the repair. The tape is available at hardware stores.

STRONG STORM CELLAR

QUESTION: We plan to build a storm cellar. Due to underground conditions, I cannot go more than three feet below ground, so at least five feet of this cellar will be above ground. What materials do you recommend? I plan to have the footings and concrete slab done by a contractor and finish the rest of the work myself.

ANSWER: I recommend concrete blocks, with heavy shutter you can bolt from the inside. Have no roof overhang for any winds to get under.

NO WAX ON TILE FLOOR

QUESTION: The front hall floor of our new house has red quarry tile. With an eye to making its color brighter, I put on wax. It did not come out the way I'd hoped, so I have been trying to get it off again. Nothing works. Can you help?

ANSWER: Very often, tur-

The straight forward, simple design of this house, by Architects Venchiarutti and Venchiarutti of Toronto, Ont. is excellent. An open stairway in the large entrance hall gives a sense of space when entering this home. The bathroom and corridor act as a separation between the bedrooms and living areas. The combined living-dining room offers flexibility as do the dinette and screened porch.

which lead off the inside kitchen. For best lighting effects the front door should face north. The floor area, exclusive of the porch and attached garage, is 1,228 square feet. The outside all-inclusive dimensions are 33 feet one inch by 41 feet ten inches. Working drawings for this house, known as Design 2337, are available from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.

when other products have failed. This is one such case.

BATS WON'T LEAVE HOME

QUESTION: Once I got rid of bats in an attic by burning a sulphur candle, but what can I do about some bats which got into our basement? The sulphur fumes would rise and fill the whole house.

ANSWER: Frankly, I think this is where you should call a good exterminator.

MOON MEN RELAX

The three moon-visitors relaxed today after their historic flight around the moon.

They were the object of attention and praise from most of the world, from the president to their own families. De-briefing experts also took up a large amount of their

Viet Cong and U.S. Envoys May Discuss POWs' Fate

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong today broadcast a new offer to meet with U.S. representatives on New Year's Day to negotiate the release of three American prisoners-of-war. It came only hours after a southern allied announcement that there will be no ceasefire Jan. 1.

A similar meeting Christmas Day broke down when U.S. representatives charged the Viet Cong tried to lure them into a "propaganda circus."

A U.S. spokesman said today he had no immediate comment on the new offer, broadcast by the Viet Cong's Liberation radio. But on Friday another spokesman had said the United States is willing to "go anywhere, any time" to negotiate the release of the prisoners.

The prisoners are Specialist James Brigham of Ocala, Fla., and Thomas Jones, Lynnville, Ind., and Pfc. Donald Smith, Akron, Pa.

The Christmas Day meeting, held during a 24-hour holiday truce, broke down over Viet Cong demands that the American delegation discuss "formalities" prior to talks about freeing the prisoners. The U.S. team of five army officers said it wanted to discuss only the date, time and place for the prisoner release.

OFFER REFRESHMENTS
The five Viet Cong representatives said the prisoners were not available and they had no authority in that regard. Instead they invited the U.S. delegates to sit down with them at a table and partake of refreshments.

U.S. and South Vietnamese spokesmen also announced they will not observe a ceasefire on New Year's Day because of more than 140 enemy violations of the Christmas truce. New Year truces had been observed the last two years.

Premier Tran Van Huong announced the order for South Vietnamese troops and a U.S. mission spokesman said: "We concur." It means a 72-hour New Year's ceasefire proclaimed by the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front will be ignored.

Military spokesmen said 17 persons were killed during the 24-hour Christmas ceasefire and 71 persons were wounded. The announcement came as fierce, close-quarter fighting was reported on the approaches to South Vietnam's two largest cities, and the U.S. command announced it has closed Camp Carroll, a major artillery base near Da Nang.

Southern allied forces claimed killing 236 Viet Cong in four battles Friday along the approaches to Saigon, and South Vietnam's second largest city, Da Nang. U.S. losses were two killed while government losses were 27 killed.

South Vietnamese rangers claim they have killed 347 enemy troops and have lost 38 dead this week.

CAME IN DMZ
Three North Vietnamese regiments of about 1,500 men each are still camped in the demilitarized zone despite the bombing halt and Paris peace talks. U.S. officers said at Camp Carroll today.

They were answering questions following a ceremony closing down the former marine base northeast of Khe Sanh and about nine miles south of the buffer strip. American marines abandoned Khe Sanh earlier this year for "strategic" reasons after a bitter siege.

As at Khe Sanh, the marines flattened Camp Carroll with bulldozers. The 2½-year-old camp, which at times housed up to 3,000 men, was dismantled because it tied down infantry units needed in the field, a spokesman said.

The Saigon government reported to the International Control

Commission today that North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces "have intensified their activities directed against South Vietnamese people in flagrant violation of the 1954 Geneva agreements on Vietnam."

The protest note to the ICC, made up of Canada, India and Poland, listed 100 cases of shellings, armed attacks, terror and assassinations which it said were typical of "war crimes committed by the Communists against the South Vietnamese people in November, 1968." The note said "312 persons were killed, 977 wounded and 70 kidnapped."

The North Vietnamese news agency charged today that U.S. and South Vietnamese troops killed more than 540 South Vietnamese civilians, including 35 old persons and children buried alive, in recent raids in Quang Nam and My Tho provinces.

National Assembly sources reported today the Saigon government is expected to earmark $717,000,000 for defence spending in 1969, an increase of $259,000,000 over the 1968 budget.

Greece Charges Arab Pair After Attack On Airliner

ATHENS (AP) — Greece has formally charged two Arab terrorists with eight counts including murder in the attack on an Israeli airliner at Athens airport Thursday.

The Athens public prosecutor leveled eight charges against Mahmud Mohamad Issa, 27, and Maher Hussein Yamani, 19, including premeditated and attempted murder, illegal possession and use of firearms, possession of explosives, arson, endangering human life, damaging foreign property and disrupting airline communications.

If found guilty on the murder charges, the two men could be sentenced to death.

Issa and Yamani were apprehended by police minutes after two Arabs shot up an El Al jet airliner, killing one Israeli passenger and slightly injuring several others. There were 56 persons aboard the Boeing 707.

The two men were expected to be brought before an investigating magistrate Saturday for pre-trial testimony.

However, it will be up to the prosecutor to determine whether they will be referred to a criminal or military court.

Greece is still under martial law since the army seized power and suspended parliamentary rule 20 months ago.

Soviet Pledges Egypt Support

CAIRO (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in his talks with Egyptian leaders earlier this week "reaffirmed the Soviet Union's concern for the preservation of peace in the Middle East and the defusing of the Arab-Israeli situation," the authoritative newspaper Al Gumhuriya said today.

The paper made the disclosure, one of the few specifics made public so far on Gromyko's sudden trip here, in the course of reporting that a new Arab-Soviet international political campaign, involving contacts with the United States, is in the offing.

The paper declined to go into details, beyond saying that the contacts will involve a tour of Arab capitals in late January by Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad of Egypt.

Liquor Store Men Accept Contract

CALGARY (CP) — Alberta's 800 liquor store workers have accepted a two-year contract that gives them wage increases of up to 15 per cent. The agreement also raised the minimum wage to $250 a month.

It is not always easy to discard so as to give partner the precise information he requires in a difficult defensive situation. For example, take this case where East won the seven of diamonds and declarer won the jack with the king. South led a club to the ace and another club back to his hand—on which East, out of clubs, had to discard.

East was reluctant to part with a heart because his lowest one, the six, might be read as a signal to lead that suit, and he was even more disinclined to discard a spade because his lowest card in this suit was the seven.

Faced with this dilemma, East elected to discard a heart as the lesser of two evils, but, unfortunately, when West won the club with the ten, he interpreted the six of hearts as a come-on signal and he returned a heart.

Declarer happily ran nine tricks and wound up with a plus of 800 points instead of a minus of 200 points, which would have been his lot had West cashed his five diamond tricks.

It is not difficult to assess the blame for the slip in the defense. East should have discarded the queen of diamonds on the second round of clubs. Had he done this, West would not have gone wrong and South would have fallen by at least two tricks.

According to the Rule of Eleven, East can tell from the opening lead that South has only one card in diamonds higher than the seven which was led. After declarer produces the king, East should discard the queen of diamonds at his first opportunity in order to clarify the diamond situation for West, who may think that declarer has that card.

This highly illuminating play would have prevented West from going wrong.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

FOR TOMORROW
Some emotional tension may be observed among associates on Sunday, so patience and understanding will be required. Milder forms of recreation may prove more enjoyable than hectic social activities.

FOR THE BIRTHDAY
If tomorrow is your birthday, your horoscope indicates that, where your material interests are concerned, you will have an excellent year, with outstanding progress and monetary gain for the forecast during a beneficent planetary period lasting from January 15th until April 15th; also during June, September and October. At the end of the latter month, it would be advisable to consolidate all gains and prepare for another excellent period for expansion beginning immediately after Christmas of next year.

In your private life, you can look forward to pleasant personal relationships for most of the year ahead. Most auspicious periods for romance: Between January 15th and April 15th (an all-around good cycle for Capricornians); in June, July and September. Propitious periods for travel: Between now and April 15th, next September and October.

A child born on this day will be extremely active and energetic, could excel in any field involving laborious detail. He will not like details, but will and can succeed as a journalist, editor handle them unusually well, nevertheless.

THE DAY AFTER TOMORROW
Planetary influences will be somewhat restrictive where finances are concerned on Monday, so avoid extravagance and speculation, and watch the budget in general.

FOR THE BIRTHDAY
If Monday is your birthday, your horoscope indicates that you should take practical and vigorous action on all worthwhile endeavors now, so that you will be able to wind up the next year in your life in the few way you can. Doing your best, you can make occupational progress and excellent financial gains in the period between January 15th and April 15th; also in June, September and October. It would be well, however, to consolidate all gains by November 1st, then "mark time" until this time next year, when you will begin another excellent 2-month cycle for expansion on all fronts.

Look for some lively family and social situations all year one which will be exceptionally congenial where personal relationships are concerned. Most auspicious periods for romance: Between now and April 15th (an all-around fine cycle for Capricornians); in June, July and September.

A child born on this day will have marked business and literary talent; could especially succeed as a journalist, editor
